Independent Candidates Routed in Charter Vote

Selby Overwhelms
Davies, 7454-1679;
Bradshaw Defeats
Horad, 8157-1471

In a special election marked by light balloting, the seven-member slate endorsed by the County Charter Committee yesterday was overwhelmingly elected as Montgomery County's new "home rule" charter council.

The three independent candidates who entered the lists against the charter committee candidates were routed.

With all of Montgomery County's 51 polling places reporting, these were the unofficial results in races for charter council seats where there were contests (D denotes Democrat; R, Republican; C, Charter-Committee-Indorsed):

Second District
Augustus R. Selby (R., C.), 7454, Charles K. Davies, jr. (D.), 1679, Fifth District

J. Douglas Bradshaw (R., C.), 8157, Romeo W. Horad (R.), 1471, Two At-Large Seats

Frederic P. Lee (D., C.), 8323, Lewis Meriam (D., C.), 7781, Mrs. Alma T. Opal (R.), 1539, Unopposed Charter Committee-Indorsed candidates were automatically elected from three districts. Unofficial results for these uncontested seats:

First District—P. Garland Ligon (D., C.), 8632, Third District—Thomas D. Kelley (R., C.), 8753, Fourth District—Mrs. Ralph Hixmsted (D., C.), 8519, Approximately 9600 votes were cast, or slightly less than 19 percent of the county's 51,000 possible votes.

Election judges who handled some 39,000 votes in the November presidential election at which the charter was adopted, yesterday knitted, sewed or listened to the radio in between visits of voters.

The voter apathy was attributed to several factors but principally to the narrow field of candidates and a general belief that the charter committee slate would coast to victory. Both the Democratic and Republican organizations refused to endorse "tickets" and the Democrats promised support for the charter committee candidates.

Davies Wins 2 Precincts
Although Davies was beaten by better than a 4 to 1 margin, he drew more votes than Selby in both of Galtersburg's precincts. Davies, a resident of Galtersburg, took Galtersburg's First

Court Compels Husband to Return 'Other Man's' Garb

Camden, N. J., Jan. 6 (NYHT). Judge Edward V. Martino, in Camden County District Court, ruled today that the man who jumps out of the window when the husband returns is entitled to the return of his clothes.

Francis Parmentier, of Pitman, N. J., told the court he chose the classic escape from a classic situation when Jesse Garrow, recently discharged from the United States Marine Corps, entered Mrs. Roslyn Farrow's apartment at 2 a. m. last November 2. It was Farrow's first visit to his wife since the end of his military service, but having heard rumors he came accompanied by an attorney and a county detective, he said.

Parmentier left the second-floor apartment via the bathroom window. Later he presented a long list of articles of clothing that he had left behind. He did not tell the court what he was wearing when he left.

Farrow said he needed the clothes as evidence in his divorce suit. Mrs. Farrow has filed a counter-suit charging desertion. Judge Martino held that Parmentier was entitled to his clothes regardless of the manner in which he abandoned them.

Essential to Strategy

Atlantic Powers Want Link With Nations Owning Bases

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr., Post Reporter

The first moves may be made soon to bring Norway, Denmark, Iceland and Portugal into full or partial partnership in North Atlantic defense.

The safety of all four is regarded as vital to the safety of the United States and Canada in case of attack. Three of the four, moreover, possess bases that are essential to the United States and Canada in fighting any aggression from the European Continent.

Diplomatic soundings to these countries have become imminent now that the negotiations for a North Atlantic defense treaty are nearing completion here in Washington.

A "working draft" of a North Atlantic pact has been hammered out in secret talks at the State Department under Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett and the Washington envoys of Canada, Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Present plans are to have the draft completed, signed and submitted to the Senate as a full-fledged treaty within two months. As it now stands, the draft is patterned on the Rio Treaty of Inter-American Defense, and follows closely the lines laid down by the Vandenberg resolution of the Senate last summer.

It provides for immediate consultation in case of a threat to the peace, without awaiting action by the Security Council of the United Nations.

It emphasizes to any doubting Senator, or to anyone who might

Softening of Policy Toward Russia Denied

Associates of President Truman denied last night that Administration foreign policy as it affects Russia has been changed. Their views were given in discussion of a Jay Franklin article in Life magazine saying the Administration is softening its policy toward Russia. Story on Page 8.

A complaint of "by-passing the United Nations" that the treaty was negotiated under Articles 51 and 52 of the Charter, which authorize regional groupings and regional action to keep the peace.

It safeguards the constitutional right of Congress, since it does not provide for an automatic declaration of war in case of aggression.

Red Spy Probe Jury Questions 2 Professors

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Two new witnesses today appeared before the Federal grand jury investigating Communist espionage activities.

They were Prof. E. J. McShane, 44, of the University of Virginia, and Prof. John L. Kelley, 32, of the University of California.

McShane and Kelley, both mathematicians, testified that they had testified that the jury questioned them concerning the character "and what we know" about another witness who appeared before the old Federal grand jury.

They identified the former witness as Franklin Victor Reno, a mathematician expert with whom they collaborated in writing a book entitled "Exterior Ballistics."

The two professors said they met Reno at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds at Aberdeen, Md., in 1942, and later were associated with him in Army work.

"They asked us about Reno's character and what we knew about him," McShane said. "They did not say why they asked us."

The present grand jury took up its spy investigation where its predecessor jury left off last month.

Felix August Inslerman, 38-year-old engineer for the General Electric Co., today appeared for the fourth successive day as a witness before the grand jury.

Inslerman declined to comment on the nature of his testimony but said he was told to return when the grand jury convenes again next Tuesday.

Also expected to testify Tuesday is Isaac Don Levine, anti-Communist magazine editor, who has appeared as a witness before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Unidentified "new witnesses" were reportedly being summoned before the jury next week.

Adm. Leahy Undergoes Operation at Bethesda

Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy Chief of Staff to President Truman, underwent an operation Wednesday. The Navy, in disclosing this yesterday, said his condition was "satisfactory."

Leahy was operated on for a "genito-urinary tract" condition at Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md.

The operation was performed by Capt. H. J. Cockey, chief of the hospital's urology service.

Leahy, who is 73, entered the hospital on Monday.

Speech Praised, Criticized

House District Group Leader Would Replace J. R. Young

Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), former and prospective new chairman of the House District Committee, said yesterday Washington needs a new Commissioner in place of John Russell Young, president of the District Board.

A new member of the Senate District Committee privately voiced his intention to fight Young's confirmation if the Commissioner is renominated. His term expires this May. His nomination is made by the President and would go to the Senate District Committee for first action.

McMillan voiced his view that Young should be replaced after receiving, he said, numerous critical comments from colleagues about Young's speech at the dinner given here Tuesday night by

Fay Declares Police Lax on Arrest Ruling

Charges Principles Of High Court Decision Frequently Violated

United States Attorney George Morris Fay has warned police that "in a great many instances" they are paying "no attention" to recently laid down Supreme Court standards of "legal arrest and subsequent search and seizure."

Fay's admonition was contained in a letter addressed to Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett, dated December 22. The text of the letter was printed by police in a memo, dated January 3, addressed to the entire police force.

Commanding officers were requested to "see that members of their commands are thoroughly familiar with the contents of this memorandum and make every effort to insure that there is cooperation between the members of this department and the United States attorney's office in accordance with the Supreme Court decision cited above."

Fay's letter charged police with frequent violation of principles laid down in the Supreme Court decision December 13, in the so-called transom peeping case.

In that case, the high court, by a 6 to 3 vote, reversed the gambling convictions of two Washington men, Earl H. McDonald and Joseph F. Washington. They were arrested after police, without a search warrant, forced their way into a rooming house through a bedroom window and discovered evidence by peeping through a transom.

The majority opinion did not discuss the transom-peeping legality, holding the illegal entry was crucial. Justice Douglas, speaking for the majority, said there was no excuse for such an entry since police had McDonald under surveillance for three months.

Passages From Fay's Letter

The Fourth Amendment, said Douglas, "has interposed a magistrate between the citizen and the police" to weigh issues and provide what warrants are necessary.

"Power is a heavy thing," said Douglas, "and history shows that police acting on their own cannot be trusted."

This decision, United States Attorney Fay's letter informed Police Chief Barrett, "outlined some of the elements which they (the Supreme Court majority) deem necessary to constitute valid grounds for a legal arrest and subsequent search and seizure."

"The majority of the court," Fay's letter said, "considered stress on the Fourth Amendment."

Truman Asks Congress Has a Distinguished Visitor...

Okays 400 Million In Budget Draft To Meet Cost of Substantial Boost

By John G. Norris, Post Reporter

President Truman has approved a proposal to grant members of the armed forces a substantial pay boost, it was learned last night.

The President, The Washington Post is informed, has included 400 million dollars in his new budget to meet the cost of a new pay bill now being drafted at the Pentagon.

Based on the recent Hook Board report, the legislation is expected to provide an average 15 per cent increase for service personnel, though there is wide variation in the increases. Uniformed members of the Coast Guard, Public Health Service and Coast and Geodetic Survey also will benefit from the measure, which drastically revises the entire service pay scale.

Asks Raise in Top Levels

Word of the White House approval of funds for the increase came after Mr. Truman asked Congress to raise the salaries of the top level Federal officials. In letters to Senate President Tom McMillan and Speaker Rayburn, he requested the raises so he can "get and keep" good men for key Administration posts.

The President's letter indorsed a bill introduced Wednesday by a bipartisan group of Senators. The bill would increase the pay of Cabinet officers, their chief assistants and "other Government officers of comparable rank."

The new salaries, under the plan, would range from $17,500 to $25,000 a year.

Officials pointed out in connection with the presidential approval of funds for a military pay increase that the pay bill itself still must be reviewed by the Bureau of the Budget and White House. Inclusion of funds in the budget, however, constitutes a "green light" for the overall project, it was said.

Budget Bureau to Get Bill

The bill is expected to be sent to the Budget Bureau shortly. As Defense Secretary James Forrestal gave general approval to the Hook Board report when he made it public two weeks ago, it probably will follow closely the recommendations of that report.

Written by a group of outstanding civilians headed by Charles R. Hook, chairman of Armo Steel, the bill proposes raises of as much as one-third for the top three enlisted grades, but continues recruits at the present scale. Senior brigadier generals would be raised 50 per cent and second lieutenants, 25 per cent.

Major objective of the plan is to bring service pay in the various grades into line with similar jobs in civil life and fix pay in accordance with responsibility.

President Truman's letter favoring a pay boost for Cabinet and sub-Cabinet officials also stressed the importance of bringing Government pay more into line with private industry. He said he realized that the Government cannot pay salaries to top executives "equal to industry, but added that it can reduce the discrepancy enough to permit able and public spirited citizens to serve the Government without too great a disadvantage."

He asserted that "inadequate salaries have long made it difficult to attract the best talent."

Israel, Egypt To Stop War, Talk Peace

Bow to U. N. Order, Agree to Negotiate Armistice Shortly

Lake Success, N. Y., Jan. 6 (AP).

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, acting United Nations Palestine mediator, announced today that Israel and Egypt have agreed to an immediate cease-fire, to be followed by the "earliest possible" negotiation of an armistice.

The halt in the fighting, concentrated in the Negev, originally was to have become effective at 9 a. m. EST today, but fighting continued because of communications delays.

Bunche cabled both sides tonight asking them to make the deadline 7 a. m. tomorrow.

U. N. officials said the agreement might pave the way for a final peace settlement in the entire Middle East. They emphasized the U. N. would play a "strong role" in the Israeli-Egyptian talks.

Egypt and Israel have agreed to negotiate "directly" but with the cooperation of the U. N. Bunche announced, adding that the time and place will be determined soon.

The Negev dispute was considered the major obstacle to genuine Arab-Jewish armistice talks for all of Palestine.

It was believed the other Arab States, notably Trans-Jordan, would follow Egypt's lead in the forthcoming negotiations appeared to be making progress.

Bunche disclosed the Egyptian government proposed the cease-fire and armistice agreement to Pablo Azarate, the mediator's representative in Cairo. Azarate relayed it to Bunche who quickly sent it to Henri Vigier, his lieutenant in Tel Aviv, where it was approved immediately.

U. N. officials, while jubilant, emphasized that an armistice had not been arranged as yet.

The agreement provides that

President's Election Is Now Official

By Robert C. Albright, Post Reporter

President Truman was officially elected yesterday—"almost" by a landslide.

He even peeked in on the voting as if to make sure of the count.

The House and Senate in joint session, after much fuss and feasting about State certifications, finally came up with these electoral vote totals, that surprised nobody: Truman and Barkley—303.

Dewey and Warren—189. Thurmond and Wright—39. Wallace and Taylor—Zero.

But a joint session vote count has its moments. Two of them almost zoomed Truman to 338 votes in the Electoral College, instead of the final 303.

Wim's Connection

The landslide "score" started when one of the House tellers, Representative Mary T. Norton (D., N. J.), a protégé of former Mayor Frank Hague, inadvertently announced Connecticut's eight votes for Truman and Barkley.

A reminder from Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.) rescued the State for Dewey and Warren.

Later the gentleman from New Jersey made another slight slip. Everyone, including Mrs. Norton, had a good laugh. She cast New York's 47 electoral votes for Truman. This time it was Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) who set things straight.

President Truman had come to the Capitol for the second straight day to attend a birthday luncheon in honor of Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), just turned 67. Rayburn had to leave the lunch to attend the vote-counting ceremonies. Later Mr. Truman decided to look in on the tallying.

Truman Strolls In

The President strolled into the rear of the House chamber just as the tellers were casting South Carolina's eight votes for Governor Thurmond. He held an informal reception, as members crowded around where he stood by the rail.

After four or five minutes he left the chamber, just as Tennessee's electoral ballot was announced. One previously committed Tennessee elector cast his ballot for Thurmond, despite the Truman-Barkley plurality there.

A reporter asked "how the vote was going" as Mr. Truman made for the street exit.

"It looks like I'm ahead," smiled the President.

For a few brief moments, however, the Dixiecrat ticket had a

Four-Day Holiday for Inauguration Is Planned

Speedy Passage Seen for Senate Resolution; Favored By White House

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) yesterday introduced a joint resolution in the Senate which would give Government employees in the metropolitan area a four-day holiday for President Truman's inauguration.

The resolution, which was referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee, calls for a holiday on Thursday and Friday, January 20 and 21.

It was approved first by the White House, yesterday, then by the Budget Bureau and the General Accounting Office. Speedy approval by Congress is indicated.

One Day Already Assured

If the bill is stymied in Capitol Hill, however, Federal workers in and near the city will be assured of a holiday on Inauguration Day, January 20.

A long-standing law makes the occasion a holiday for Government workers in the District only. An executive order already has been prepared to extend the holiday to all Federal employees in the metropolitan area. It will be issued if the unexpected occurs, and Senator McGrath's resolution bogs down.

No legislation is needed to make Friday a holiday, too. The President has authority to order closing of Federal offices on that or any other workday.

Since there has been frequent criticism from Capitol Hill of the Government's liberal leave policies, however, the Administration would like Congress to initiate the extra inauguration holiday.

In other developments for the 1949 Inaugural, Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett announced that Maryland and Virginia police are being alerted to keep "as much traffic as possible from coming into Washington on January 20."

Committee Meets

Barrett disclosed his plans during a special meeting of the inaugural committee's transportation committee.

Motorists will be urged to park in suburban communities and then take special commuter trains and buses to be provided for the celebration.

The Capital Transit Co. has announced that special buses will meet all incoming traffic at the District line and carry passengers to the downtown area. Terminals will be at Western and Wisconsin avenues, Alexandria, Rosslyn, and at points where Routes 1, 301 and 5 cross the District line.

A Pennsylvania Railroad spokesman said special trains will be scheduled every 15 minutes between Baltimore and Washington. They may be flagged at various

Doughboy AWOL Since 1919 Gives Self Up to MPs

Fort Knox, Ky., Jan. 6 (AP)—Military authorities announced here today they have taken into custody a 56-year-old World War I soldier who has been absent without leave since January 5, 1919.

He was identified as George Loecheil, Cincinnati, whose son served in World War II. The elder Loecheil surrendered to military police at Cincinnati.

He said he went to his Cincinnati home on furlough in 1919 and "just decided not to go back." Later he changed his mind but learned his outfit had been shipped overseas.

Loecheil said he has been doing odd jobs in Cincinnati for the past 30 years, but told authorities: "Odd jobs are pretty hard to get at my age, so I'd like to go back into the Army if they'll let me."

He is driving a truck while authorities ponder the case.

Soviets to Return 16 British Ships

London, Jan. 6 (AP).—Twelve British warships loaned to the Soviet Union during the war will be returned to England starting January 15, the Admiralty said tonight.

The first to come home include the battleship Royal Sovereign, one destroyer and three submarines. The second and third groups, due in March and in July, will consist of seven destroyers.

When the ships were loaned to Russia in 1944, she agreed to return them after receiving her share of the Italian war fleet.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

By Sam Slavsky

Sam Rayburn Marks His 67th Birthday
At Apex of Popularity, Prestige and Power

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn yesterday observed his sixty-seventh birthday at the zenith of his public service, political prestige and personal popularity.

The stocky, serious Texan—distinguished by a silver-fringed bald head—has served 35 years in Congress, and in all those years steadily accumulated a reputation for dependability, middle-of-the-road liberalism, and fair play.

In all those years—through boom-prosperity, depression, New Deal and the war—Sam Rayburn never went back on his word. So declare his host of admirers. One such friend, former Vice President Jack Garner, put it this way: "Sam stays hitched."

Most Powerful Since Cannon

A few days ago, with the Democrats once again in the saddle, Sam was re-elected Speaker, a post he'd held from '41 to '46, when the Republicans temporarily took control of the House. Always an effective leader, Sam has become through his persuasive personality, his acute knowledge of parliamentary tactics, and his thorough command of the situation, the most powerful Speaker since the days of "Czar" Joe Cannon.

The Speaker is, under the law, second in line of succession to the White House—next only to the Vice President—but, actually, the Speaker is No. 2—next only to the President—in influence.

It so happens that President Harry Truman and Speaker Sam Rayburn are close friends. The same year—'44—that he was nominated for Vice President, Truman in at least one speech plugged Sam as Franklin D. Roosevelt's fourth-term running mate.

"Fair Deal" Fits Rayburn

Vice President Truman was chatting with Speaker Rayburn in the latter's office hide-away on Capitol Hill when he was notified of President Roosevelt's death. The President frequently shows up to parties thrown for Sam—just as he did at the birthday party yesterday. So it's not surprising that, behind scenes, Rayburn went to work for Truman's "Fair Deal" program, blueprinted the pattern for giving the Administration control of the for making and keeping friends. He has them by the hundreds, all over the country. He's universally liked in Congress.

Once, when word got around on the Hill that Fisherman Sam lost his rod in the Potomac, friends sent him seven new ones. When, in '47, he stepped down as Speaker and thereby lost the limelight, he went with the job, Democratic members of the House chipped in $25 apiece to buy Sam another big rod. Sam loves to take long rides into the country.

It's said that when Sam left the farm to head for the State Legislature his father gave him some words of advice: "Son, don't do anything you'll ever be ashamed of." Those who know Sam best say he's lived up to the advice.

clear lead. That was when Alabama, leading the roll call, certified its 11 votes for Thurmond. Arizona, the next State, failed to overtake it, and the score stood 11 to 4 Thurmond for not really tense seconds.

You see, it all was a foregone conclusion. But it won't be that way this time, if eleven Senate sponsors of a constitutional amendment have their way. They are moving, with growing support, to abolish the 144-year-old electoral college system and elect future Presidents by popular percentage votes.

Speaker Rayburn's birthday luncheon was arranged by Jack Cowart of Dallas, the Agriculture Department's assistant production and marketing administrator. The House restaurant served up fruit cup, steak, French fried potatoes, green peas, salad, vanilla ice cream with crushed strawberries, coffee and cakes, but Mr. Rayburn hardly got a taste of his own birthday spread. 2d Truman Message Today

A Congress still sorting the "Fair Deal" measures Mr. Truman tabulated in his State of the Union message today will get more of the details in the President's annual "Economic Report."

The House ordered a Friday session to receive the message. Since the President will not deliver it in person, the Senate recessed until Monday.

Mr. Truman's second installment in a trio of messages will be based on the recommendations of his Economic Advisory Council headed by Dr. Edwin G. Nourse.

More tax and spending details will be received Monday, when the President delivers his annual budget message to Congress. Labor, housing and other major legislative recommendations presented to Congress Monday were already being dropped into the hopper but others awaited "more information."

30 Million Seen Need

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Jan. 6 (AP). The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis "is on trial for its very life," Basil O'Connor of New York, head of the foundation said today.

"If we hope to continue the job we must raise at least 30 million dollars this year. The 1948 polio epidemic has exhausted national funds," he said.

The foundation spent "more than 17 million dollars in 1948 on patient care," he continued, and as much will be needed for carry-over cases alone in 1949. There were more than 27,500 cases in the Nation last year.

Taft, Thomas
Reintroduce
Education Bill

Senators Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah) yesterday reintroduced a bill providing Federal aid to education. A similar measure was passed by the Senate last year, but failed to pass the House.

The bill's main purpose, Taft told the Senate, "is to equalize educational opportunities for our boys and girls throughout the United States, and increase the money available for that purpose, especially in the poorer States."

"Experience shows," he continued, "that many of these States, even though they make a greater comparative financial effort than the wealthier States, are unable to provide a minimum basic education for many children."

The bill, Taft, explained, provides about 260 million dollars a year, and seeks to provide an expenditure of not less than $50 a year for the education of every child in the country.

Its terms provide that no State will receive less than $5 for each child of school age. The money is to be spent at the direction of educational officials of the States.

Funds will be allocated in proportion to the number of children to be educated and in inverse proportion to the wealth of the State. Joining with Taft and Thomas in sponsoring the measure were the following Senators: Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.), Allen J. Ellender (D., La.), Lister Hill (D., Ala.), J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), James E. Murray (D., Mont.), Claude Pepper (D., Fla.), Matthew W. Neely (D., W. Va.), George D. Aiken (R., Vt.), Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.), H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.), Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.), and Russell B. Long (D., La.).

Similar Bill Filed in House

Meanwhile, a similar bill was introduced in the House by Representative Thurston Ballard Morton (R., Ky.) while Representative James G. Polk (D., Ohio) introduced a Federal aid to education bill calling for an outlay of $1,250,000,000 over a five-year period.

Polk said in a statement that his proposal is intended to carry out President Truman's recommendations for education as set forth in his state of the Union message.

When he introduced the bill, Senator Thomas also offered a science foundation bill, sponsored by him and Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) in the Eightieth Congress. Like the Federal education bill also passed the Senate a year ago but failed in the House.

43% Expect Higher Income Taxes This Year

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion
Princeton, N. J., Jan. 6.—If the Eighty-first Congress decides to increase income taxes it will come as no surprise to the public.

Even before the new Congress met on Monday, more people expected taxes to be boosted than expected the contrary, according to results of a coast-to-coast survey by the institute.

During the period between December 9 and December 20, 240 interviewers for the institute put the following question to 3200 voters constituting a cross section of the Nation:

"Regardless of how you feel, do you think Federal income taxes will be increased or decreased this coming year?"

The vote:
Expect increase 43%
Expect decrease 16%
Remain same 17%
No opinion 24%

People in the higher income levels are particularly resigned to the idea, but an interesting feature of the survey is a tendency among people of all walks of life to think that their own taxes will be boosted.

This is shown in answers to a second question in the survey, which was put to all those who said they think taxes will be increased:

"Do you think people in your walk of life will have their Federal income taxes increased?"

Associated Press WIREPHOTO JUNE MILLARDE She's the Toni

By The Associated Press An air of mild mystery developed yesterday over the current whereabouts and activities of Senator Warren Magnuson of Washington State.

The 43-year-old Democrat has been listed as "necessarily absent" from the first sessions of the Eighty-first Congress.

But his office professed no knowledge to bear out published reports linking Magnuson's name romantically with that of actress June Millarde.

These reports had it that the golden-haired and curvaceous Miss Millarde—also known as Toni Seven—left New York late in November to marry Magnuson.

Miss Millarde, 25, was left a fortune by her parents of early movie fame, actress June Caprice and director Harry Millarde.

She and the Senator were reported to have met here last spring. Afterward they were seen together frequently.

All that could be learned from the Senator's office was that his associates have not heard from him in several days. The "necessarily absent" explanation was given by Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, in accounting for empty seats on the majority side when the new Congress convened Monday.

In Seattle, Magnuson's friends reported he left there early in the week with the explanation that he planned to drive part way and then fly to Washington. They denied any knowledge of a romance.

Magnuson was married for a time while he was in college. His wife, the former Eleanor Maddieux of Seattle, obtained a decree of divorce on grounds of incompatibility in 1935. The Magnusons were married June 19, 1928, a year after Mrs. Magnuson went to the Atlantic City beauty contest as "Miss Seattle."

SS Officer Executed Strasbourg, France, Jan. 6 (U.P.)—Hans Rowoldt, former SS officer convicted of murdering 40 members of the French resistance movement in 1944, was executed by a firing squad here today.

Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah) yesterday offered a bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Law, and in its place restore the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

Although as offered, Thomas' measure would return labor legislation exactly as it was before the Taft-Hartley Act was passed, Thomas announced that there may be some changes necessary in the new act before it is finally passed.

"The repeal of the Taft-Hartley Law," he said, "will call for other legislation, and the President's message called for other legislation."

"These other proposals," he said, "may be worked out as amendments or additions to the National Labor Relations Act as it stood before the Taft-Hartley Law."

One feature of the Taft-Hartley law will be retained, he said—the one that increased the National Labor Relations Board from three to five members.

This change, Thomas frankly stated, was to protect the job of a former senatorial colleague from Utah, Abe Murdock, a Democratic member of NLRB since 1947.

"I do not like it to be said that I am introducing a bill which would cut down my former colleague in this body and an associate of so many Senators now serving," Thomas said.

He did not indicate whether he favors repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, reinstatement of the Wagner Act, with modifications in a single bill, or whether he favors two measures as urged by labor organizations. Labor asks for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, reinstatement of the Wagner Act and then possible amendment of the latter act.

Along with his labor measure, Thomas presented a bill raising the minimum wage to 75 cents an hour—similar to one introduced by Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.) Wednesday.

Representative John Lesinski (D., Mich.), slated to be chairman of the House Labor Committee, plans to offer a brand-new labor bill "by the end of the month," he said yesterday. Lesinski said he favors a single bill to cover the entire matter.

Present Law Held Adequate The Mediation Board told Congress it thinks the Railway Labor Act is "adequate in its present form."

But it added that failure of both the railroads and unions to accept the "spirit of the law" at all times has led to several threatened strikes.

In its present form, the essence of the law is to avoid interruption of the Nation's railroad transportation without resort to force. The carriers and the brotherhoods must reawaken to their responsibilities under the law. Only in this way can compulsory measures for dealing with railway labor disputes be avoided.

Twice in the past two years the Government has seized control of the railroads to halt a countrywide train shutdown. In 1946 the engineers and trainmen went on strike and their men returned to work only when it became known President Truman planned to ask Congress to draft the strikers into the Army.

Last May, Mr. Truman got a Federal Court injunction to prevent a threatened strike by the engineers, firemen and switchmen's unions. Even now the railroads are negotiating in Chicago with 16 so-called nonoperating railroad

Rail Men Told Strike Might Stiffen Law

By the United Press The Government yesterday warned railroad industry and labor that another Nation-wide train strike probably could result in a new and drastic railway labor law.

In a year-end report to Congress, the National Mediation Board said that railroad labor disputes must be settled without strikes if "compulsory measures" are to be avoided.

The Mediation Board is the Government's official strike-settling agency in the railroad and airline industries.

Both industries are covered by the 22-year-old Railway Labor Act which outlines a series of voluntary pre-strike steps for unions and management to follow in labor disputes. Neither the airline nor rail industry is subject to the Taft-Hartley labor-management law.

Present Law Held Adequate The Mediation Board told Congress it thinks the Railway Labor Act is "adequate in its present form."

But it added that failure of both the railroads and unions to accept the "spirit of the law" at all times has led to several threatened strikes.

In its present form, the essence of the law is to avoid interruption of the Nation's railroad transportation without resort to force. The carriers and the brotherhoods must reawaken to their responsibilities under the law. Only in this way can compulsory measures for dealing with railway labor disputes be avoided.

Twice in the past two years the Government has seized control of the railroads to halt a countrywide train shutdown. In 1946 the engineers and trainmen went on strike and their men returned to work only when it became known President Truman planned to ask Congress to draft the strikers into the Army.

Last May, Mr. Truman got a Federal Court injunction to prevent a threatened strike by the engineers, firemen and switchmen's unions. Even now the railroads are negotiating in Chicago with 16 so-called nonoperating railroad labor unions in an effort to head off a Nationwide strike which could start any time after January 17.

Under the procedures of the Railway Labor Law, labor and management first try to settle their differences across the bargaining table. If that fails the President appoints a special committee to study the dispute and make settlement recommendations.

The suggestions of the committee are not binding on either party but, for 30 days after the committee makes its report to the White House, there can be no strike or lockout on the railroads. The 30-day no-strike period is supposed to be used for further bargaining in the event the recommendations of the President's committee are turned down.

The Mediation Board said "the implications of the law are strong that the recommendations of the President's fact-finding board should in good grace be accepted by both parties as a proper basis for settling a dispute."

"The board feels certain that neither side would willingly tear down the successful plan which they worked so hard to build. Stricter and more careful observance of their responsibilities will serve to avoid this undesirable result."

Russia Voted Down On Jap Strike Rule

By The Associated Press

Russia was voted down 9 to 1 yesterday on a Soviet move to condemn Gen. Douglas MacArthur's no-strike order for government workers in Japan.

The vote was taken at a heated session of the 11-nation Far Eastern Commission. Russia called MacArthur's action "antidemocratic."

Ambassador Carlos Romulo of the Philippines retorted that Russia was making a "malicious distortion" of the case and was seeking to exploit the commission as a "springboard for propaganda."

Only Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin voted for the Russian resolution. Nine other governments voted against it. China abstained.

The Soviet envoy had demanded that the commission instruct MacArthur to withdraw a directive he issued to the Japanese cabinet last July 22, banning strikes by several million Japanese government employees. At that time it was explained that MacArthur took the same position as the United States Government: i. e., strikes against the government are illegal.

Immediately after yesterday's vote, the Soviet envoy pulled a prepared statement from his pocket and read it. He said the other nations, by their votes, had "thus entered the road of approving these antidemocratic measures of General MacArthur and the Japanese government."

Romulo promptly declared the fact of the Soviet statement having been prepared in advance was evidence that Russia's purpose was propaganda alone.

The Far Eastern Commission sets formal policies to guide MacArthur as supreme allied commander.

Tientsin Again Under Red Fire

FIGHTING RESUMED—Communist troops yesterday reportedly shelled besieged Tientsin (A) and the surrounding Government armies (B) southwest of Suchow as the resumption of fighting broke a two-week lull in the North China fighting. Latest peace move was made by the city council of Peiping (underlined), which voted to ask the Reds surrounding the city for terms.

Lie to Take No Action

Lake Success, Jan. 6 (P)—United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie has decided to take no action in the Chinese war, the U. N. announced tonight.

The U. N. press department said Lie's "view that his authority to take any action is doubtful and that in any event it does not appear that any action on his part could be helpful in the present situation."

Formosa Seen Stronghold

commanded the Suchow army group, reportedly escaped to Hankow. The independent newspaper Peoples Daily quoted him as saying the force had been reduced by 150,000 to 200,000 men. He said the men had eaten all the horses and hundreds were deserting.

Meanwhile, Information Director Shen Chang-huan told reporters Chinese Communist radio attacks on President Chiang's peace proposal were no reply "either formal or informal."

As for published reports the government is asking the United States, Russia, France and Britain to mediate, the spokesman said: "So far as I know, no government official has been authorized to request mediation from all or any of those countries, nor from any other foreign power."

[Three top Chinese generals are "politely refusing" to obey Chiang's military orders in an effort to force him to resign, a well-informed source, today told the United Press.

The generals were identified as Pai Chung-hsi of the Hankow garrison, controlling the Yangtze River west of Nanking; Chang Chen, Honan provincial commander, whose troops stand between the Communists and Nanking; and Cheng Chien, commander at Changsha, capital of Hunan Province, south of Hankow.

though Bullitt refused to say which general he thinks should be sent, he added: "I believe General MacArthur could do the job in less time than any other general."

Bullitt, who was in China from November 9 to December 15, said it was "totally untrue" that Chiang is no longer able to govern his country. But he added that the Chinese have no single government general with the military training and skill to meet the attack of more than two million Communist soldiers.

Bullitt's suggestions were generally along the line advanced in recent weeks by Chinese leaders as the military situation in the war-torn country became increasingly critical for the Nationalist forces.

American officials, however, have shown no sign of moving for any vast increase in United States aid. Mme. Chiang Kai-shek had audiences with President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall, to no avail.

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), chairman of the Joint Committee, said he personally feels that the United States is "risking a tremendous gamble when we let an area containing half the population of the globe be exposed to Communist conquest without having a definite, positive, aggressive policy to counteract it."

Asked whether he knew whether this country would have a new China-aid program, Bridges said he did not. He added: "I think a great many people would like to know."

Congress last year approved a 400-million dollar China aid program, of which 125 million dollars was earmarked for military supplies. Practically all of the military funds have been used up.

Bullitt's report had high praise for the work of ECA officials administering the recovery funds. The China mission is headed by Roger D. Lapham, former Mayor of San Francisco.

House Urged To Unite on Foreign Policy

A "more potent voice" for Congress in foreign affairs was asked in three House resolutions introduced yesterday.

The resolutions, by Representative Merrow (R., N. J.), propose adoption in the House of a bipartisan of a 19-man committee for the foreign policy platform, and investigation of the State Department and its foreign service.

Merrow asked "immediate" selection of a 19-man committee for the job. A $50,000 appropriation was proposed.

Merrow said the move was "desirable" to give Congress "a more potent voice in the development and implementation of foreign policy."

The committee would be made up of four majority party members and three minority party members of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, and three members each from the Appropriations, Armed Services, Banking and Currency, Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committees.

cult to obtain and hold able men for positions of greatest responsibility in the Government service."

The President did not mention a pay boost for himself, though pending legislation would increase his pay. He has said that while he would not ask for a raise, neither would he veto one.

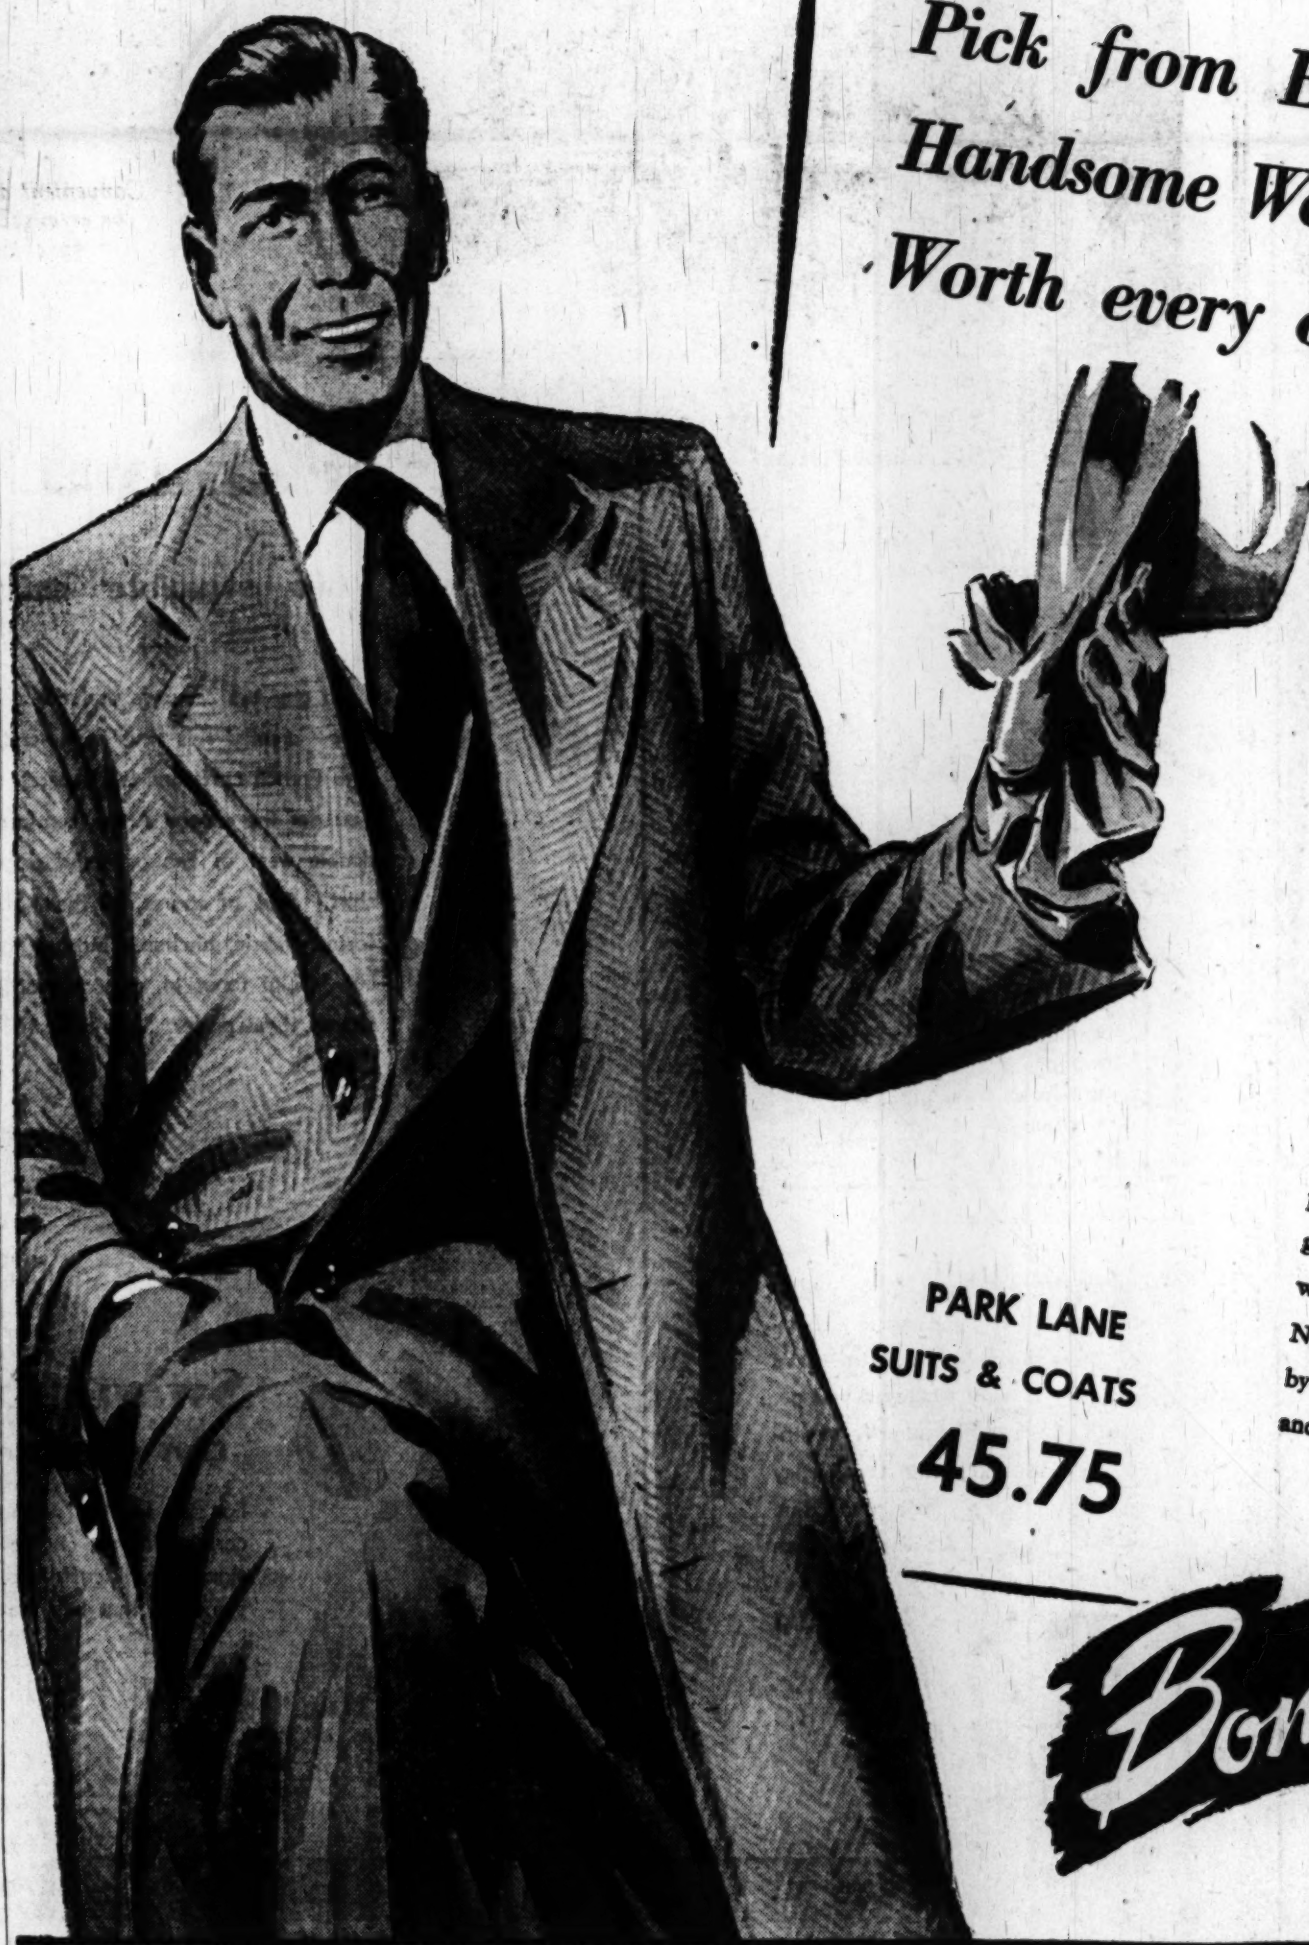

Noting that his new Administration will be launched on January 20, Mr. Truman said:

"Prompt action on this bill is of great importance to me in strengthening the management of the executive branch to meet (its) responsibilities."

"Its small cost will be repaid many times. I ask the Congress to give me the means which will make it possible for me to get and keep the men who are required for the job ahead."

The Senate bill endorsed by Mr. Truman would raise the salaries of Cabinet department heads from $15,000 to $25,000 a year. Heads of important independent agencies, boards and commission would receive pay ranging from $17,500 to $22,500 a year.

Juliana Renews Promise Of Self-Rule to Indonesia

The Hague, Jan. 6 (AP)—Queen Juliana today renewed pledges to Indonesians of free elections and partnership in a sovereign government.

The Queen said Dutch military action in the Indies became unavoidable because of "certain elements preferring violence and chaos to peaceful co-operation."

In a broadcast address she expressed the hope that an Indonesian federal government would be established in a few weeks.

She said, free elections would be organized "as soon as circumstances permit," and then would follow creation of what she called "the sovereign United States of Indonesia."

U. S. Urges Dutch To Act Speedily

By The Associated Press

The United States prodded the Netherlands government yesterday to prove by prompt, specific actions its declared intention to grant self-rule to the people of Indonesia.

Undersecretary of State Lovett made the United States views known in a letter to CIO President Philip Murray, who wrote last month praising American steps to end Dutch "aggression."

Lovett declared the United States hopes the Netherlands will "organize an Indonesian government in which all parties may seek and obtain representation in accordance with their popular followings, through the exercise of free, democratic processes."

Officials said these views had been expressed to the Netherlands government directly.

What the United States wants, these informants said, is:

1. An immediate and completely effective cease-fire.
2. Unconditional release of all Indonesian leaders.
3. Withdrawal of Netherlands troops from territory occupied since the Dutch began action December 18.

Lovett praised the noncommunist character of the Indonesian people. He said the Republican government had "resolutely taken action against and eliminated a Communist revolt against its authority engineered by Moscow-trained and disciplined Communist agents."

Batavia press dispatches said the Dutch, ordered by the U. N. Security Council to release captive members of the Republican government, have given no indication thus far of complying.

The Chinese daily, Sin Po, quoted official sources that President Soekarno is held at Balikpapan, Borneo.

Soviet Says Troops To Leave Germany

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, Jan. 6 (NYHT).—The Soviet military administration declared today that Russia would carry out its pledge to conclude a peace treaty and withdraw its troops from Germany "despite the dark plans of the Americans in the West," just as the Soviet troops left North Korea despite the continued presence of American troops in the southern part of that country.

Another development of importance was the announcement tonight by the Russian news agency that W. S. Semjonow, the Russian political adviser in Germany, has been elevated to the rank of ambassador-extraordinary and minister-plenipotentiary. The announcement set off speculation that the timeable for the establishment of an East-German parliament, and the conclusion of the peace treaty between the Soviet Union and the Germans may be speeded.

There is increasing evidence the delay in establishment of the East-German government is proving as embarrassing for the Russians as for the western Allies.

The Communists have been holding up announcement of the East-German government (they plan to call it a government of all Germany) until the western regime is established; they want to blame the western Allies for having formalized the split of this country.

Army Hits Berlin Club On GI Ban

Berlin, Jan. 6 (AP).—The United States Army told the swank Harnack House Club today it will have to stop its ban on enlisted men if it wants to keep on receiving Army funds.

Major Gen. George Hays, deputy American commander in Germany, explained that regulations forbid "discrimination" against enlisted men when Federal funds are used. American officers led the campaign to bar enlisted men from the club, largest in Berlin. Civilian members said the GIs should be allowed to use the club as long as German girls can be guests.

A special meeting has been called for Tuesday night to consider reorganizing as a private club. As such Harnack House could bar anyone it chose. But it also would have to pay $1100 a month rent on its big mansion, extra transportation costs for liquor and supplies and salaries for management. Signs barring enlisted men were removed yesterday pending a final decision. The club has 400 officers and 700 civilians as members.

Clubs like Harnack House are set up under Army supervision. Food and liquor come from tax-free Army stocks. The Army provides the building, fuel and public utilities and the rent is charged against German reparations.

Soviet Rape Penalty Raised to 15 Years

Moscow, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Supreme Soviet today raised the penalty for rape to from 10 to 15 years in a labor camp and to 20 years if the victim is a minor.

Twenty-year terms also were decreed if rape is committed collectively by a group of men or if it results in an "aggravating condition."

The crime previously was punishable by a five-year maximum term and eight years if the victim was a minor or committed suicide.

Hearing Set on Loans

Final informal hearing on the District's proposed regulations covering operations of money lenders will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday in the District Building board room, Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester H. Gray announced yesterday.

Ruhr Workers Block Plant Dismantling

Bochum, Germany, Jan. 6 (AP).—Workers today blocked efforts of a German crew to begin dismantling portions of the Bochumer Verein steel works. It was the second such incident this week. Tonight the British military government posted warnings in the plant that any further interference would result in prosecution. The plant, one of the largest steel mills in Germany, employs 11,000 workers.

Hungary Plans To Pay Clergy Of ERP, Says Harriman

Vatican City, Jan. 6 (AP).—Vatican sources said today Hungary has decided that all Catholic clergy in that Communist-controlled country henceforth will receive their pay from the government.

The sources said this information was brought here through Magr. Giulio Czapick, Archbishop of Eger, Czechoslovakia.

The information is that the decision was made by Hungary since the nationalization of Catholic schools, a move fought bitterly by Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, the Catholic primate, under arrest on charges of treason.

The first 12 hours of school instruction will be regarded as a regular daily priestly assignment and extra payment will begin thereafter upon presentation of a certificate from the school director involved, informants said.

Europe Is Able to Meet Goal Of ERP, Says Harriman

Paris, Jan. 6 (AP).—Despite pessimistic first estimates, western Europe can solve its economic problems within the time limit of the European Recovery Program, a top American administrator said today.

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, special representative in Europe for the ERP, admitted that much work would have to be done.

But, he said, he believed "the ERP nations have it within their capabilities to attain a manageable situation in 1952-53, and have the vision and drive to achieve it."

Harriman referred to a report submitted by the Organization for European Economic Cooperation (OEEC) showing that a deficit of from one billion to three billion dollars was possible in the first year after the end of ERP. To reduce the deficit, Harriman said the OEEC leadership "must be supported and strengthened by the participating governments and their peoples."

Marshall Plan Held U. S. "Best Bargain"

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Marshall Plan is the "best bargain the American people ever received," it is curbing communism, Paul G. Hoffman said today.

The Economic Cooperation administrator said without Marshall Plan aid all western Europe might be under Communist influence now.

Hoffman said he would seek a clear directive from Congress on how American goods should be transported to Europe. A controversy arose after he said ECA aid would be carried by foreign ships unless United States shipping rates were lowered.

Hoffman said he had every intention of winding up the ECA program on schedule on June 30, 1952.

'Free Market' Prices High

Prague, Jan. 6 (AP).—Czechoslovaks got their first look at the high prices in the government's "free market" stores which opened today.

You could get a necktie for $12. Children's overcoats would set you back $38. Women's skirts were $78 and underpants $20.

Prices were up 50 to 450 per cent over last week. On the "free market" you don't need ration coupons. But the government announced ration goods are subject to a big increased tax, too.

With ration tickets distributed in factories by workers' councils, Czech workers will get first chance at buying the cheaper rationed goods.

Shopkeepers, private employers and farmers who own more than 35 acres of land will not be issued ration coupons for clothing.

Greeks Attack Guerillas
Athens, Greece, Jan. 6 (AP).—Greek commandos have opened full scale operations against guerillas in the Peloponnese, in the south and have killed or wounded 150 of them in the first big fight, the government announced tonight. Only two commandos were killed and eight wounded.

Truman Aides Deny Jay Franklin Statement That U. S. Has Softened Policy Toward Soviet

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Associates of President Truman scoffed last night at an article by Jay Franklin in Life Magazine, saying that the Administration was softening its policy toward Soviet Russia.

One of these associates, who preferred not to be identified, said the article "contains a lot of nonsense."

It was said authoritatively that there had been no change in the Administration's foreign policy so far as Russia is concerned.

Franklin, a Washington newspaper columnist, who helped write speeches on the Truman Campaign Special, said that the American people would not regard it as a mistake if Mr. Truman takes "a little of the poison ivy from around the olive branch which he is determined to wave" at Premier Stalin.

Elaboration of Column

The Life article is an elaboration of a column which Franklin published on November 20. Mr. Truman was asked to comment on this column by Merriman Smith of the United Press at a White House news conference on December 2. His question was as follows:

"There was a column in a Philadelphia paper . . . by Jay Franklin, who was associated with your campaign, in which he indicates that there might be some change in foreign policy. He said that the effect of the election was to dynamite the foreign policy of Jimmy Byrnes, Marshall and Forrestal. Could you comment?"

President Truman brushed off the question with the remark that it was a typical columnist's comment and he would have nothing to say on it.

One of Mr. Truman's associates said last night apropos of the Life article, that the December 2 remark still holds good.

Kansas City Remark Recalled

He was particularly displeased by Franklin's criticism of Secretary of State Marshall, and pointed out that Mr. Truman's attitude toward his No. 1 Cabinet officer was one that bordered on veneration.

Franklin said in Life that his conclusions flowed from the President's own campaign statements and "from my private conversations with him . . ."

He alluded to Mr. Truman's statement in Kansas City that certain leaders in Russia were anxious for an understanding with the United States, and that he would spend the next four years trying to reach an understanding with all nations.

This, said Franklin, "caused diplomatic goose-pimples in the State Department by suggesting that it might be possible to come to an understanding with the Soviet Union."

He said that Mr. Truman thus opened yet another phase "in his long struggle against the organized pressures which threaten to create an American vested interest in world unrest and which have won practically every skirmish with the President up to now."

"Struggle" Is Reviewed

He said that this struggle began in 1946 when former Secretary of State Byrnes "persuaded Mr. Truman to dismiss Henry Wallace from the Cabinet and give 100 per cent support to the bipartisan foreign policy . . ."

"It is in the Cabinet," Franklin said, "that the President has been facing his greatest pressure, for it is here that he confronts the two wings of the ominous vested interest in the continuation of bad relations between America and Russia: the munitions interests and the Arabian oil interests."

"It is interesting to note in this regard that his Secretary of Defense, Jim Forrestal, and his Under Secretary of State, Bob Lovett, were both investment bankers in private life and it is a well-known fact that the investment of banking industry has loaned huge sums to munitions makers and the oil industry."

Life Editors Dissent

Life's editors, in a foreword, praised Forrestal and Lovett and also dissented from Franklin's reflections upon American foreign policy in the last two years.

"Is Mr. Franklin correct in his interpretation of President Truman's post-election approach to foreign policy?" the foreword asked. "Presidential Counsel Clark Clifford, for one, takes an opposite view. However, it seems clear that Mr. Franklin reflects the views of others close to the President such as David Niles, Oscar Ewing and Senator Claude Pepper."

The aforementioned associate of Mr. Truman, in saying there was "a lot of nonsense" in the Franklin article, pointed out that Niles, Ewing and Pepper did not make United States foreign policy.

ECA Releases 22 Million to Curb Norway Inflation

By The Associated Press

The United States acted under the Marshall Plan last night to help Norway curb inflation caused by the German occupation.

The Economic Cooperation Administration released 22 million dollars in Norwegian kroner "counterpart" funds so Norway could ease the burden saddled on her by the Germans during the war.

When the United States supplies dollars to a country under the Marshall Plan of European recovery, the recipient is required to set aside an equivalent sum of its own currency. This is known as a counterpart fund. It must be used to promote recovery, and can't be used until the United States gives the word.

During the war the Germans saddled Norway with huge costs to support German occupation forces. The Germans drew 11 billion kroner (about $2,200,000,000) from the Bank of Norway for the purpose and the sum became a national debt of Norway.

Since the liberation, the ECA said, the Norwegian government has been able to reduce this "occupation account" to about eight billion kroner ($1,600,000,000).

sively against the Soviet Union. Its final signature may, in fact, be accompanied by a renewed offer to join with Russia in a guarantee against attack by a revived Germany.

The treaty will say nothing about bases, according to present plans; it will be phrased in broad general terms. But all the participants in the State Department talks see clearly that it will be ineffective as (1) a deterrent against possible Soviet attack, and (2) a source of protection for its signer-nations, unless a direct or indirect relationship is established with other Atlantic countries.

One of the knottiest problems facing the seven-nation negotiators now is what other countries should be brought in; and this raises other questions about the extent of their participation, and the best way to get it.

Sweden, for example, has been seen from the beginning as a logical member of the group, because Sweden is strategically important and has efficient defense forces of its own. But the Swedes are in an exposed position alongside Soviet-controlled Finland; they are still almost as devoted as the Swiss to "neutrality," and it appears unrealistic this year, at least, to try to bring Sweden in.

Ireland is another Atlantic country whose full or partial partnership would help make the treaty effective. But Sean MacBride, the Irish Minister of External Affairs, said on October 29 that his government would make no defense arrangement with Great Britain, as long as the six counties of Northern Ireland remain British. He did not rule out a defense agreement with the United States, but hopes are slight here that Ireland can be brought into the North Atlantic defense system by any device this year.

Italy, finally, is a third country whose immediate association with a North Atlantic defense group is doubtful. American defense authorities no longer feel the same sense of urgency about including Italy as they did some months ago. Yugoslavia, Italy's eastern neighbor, is now in a state of economic warfare with Russia, and the Italian armed forces are being strengthened within the limits fixed by the peace treaty.

So the first priorities in any broadening of the North Atlantic treaty now come down to four: Norway, Denmark, Iceland and Portugal.

Of the four, Norway is the most exposed and yet the most courageous and determined in its attitude toward a North Atlantic defense treaty. Norway has a 120-mile unfortified frontier with the Soviet Union in the far north and, therefore, is in a position as exposed as that of Sweden.

Yet Norway knows that there is no refuge in "neutrality," it learned that lesson on April 9, 1940, when the German invaders came. The Norwegians probably would join an Atlantic pact if they could do so without offending their Swedish neighbors and disrupting the close ties of the three Scandinavian kingdoms.

The Danes are equally skeptical of "neutrality," but equally anxious to reach a friendly understanding on defense matters with the Swedes. The three Scandinavian Premiers yesterday ended a two-day meeting on defense problems at Karlstad, Sweden, without telling what agreement, if any, they reached.

The United States can continue its use of bases in Danish-owned Greenland without bringing Denmark formally into the North Atlantic treaty. The wartime agreement for the use of Greenland bases continues in force while its renegotiation is going on, very slowly, between the two governments. Communist strength in the Danish Parliament, substantial since after liberation, has been reduced to slight proportions, and with it the opposition to American use of Greenland has dwindled.

Similarly, the United States Air Force can use its present base in the Portuguese Azores whether or not Portugal formally joins the North Atlantic partnership. Almost a year ago Portugal agreed to let the United States use the Lages Airfield in the Azores for five years, and Defense Secretary Forrestal expressed his "deep gratitude" for Portugal's "generous assistance and cooperation."

In addition, Portugal is allied to Great Britain under a 600-year-old treaty. It would make little practical difference in case of war whether or not Portugal formally adhered, as a full partner, to the new Atlantic treaty.

As for Iceland, whose protection and whose airfields are equally vital to the United States and Canada, the Government there might be more willing to join Atlantic treaty talks if Norway and Denmark did the same. In Iceland's case, however, the more promising course is believed here to be a direct agreement with the United States and Canada.

It is not yet known just how the four additional countries will be approached. Their envoys here could be invited to join the present seven-nation talks; or they could be shown the draft treaty and their comments invited; or the treaty could be signed and then an attempt made somehow to link the four other countries.

Scandinavian Ministers End Secret Defense Talks

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 6 (U.P.)—The prime ministers, foreign ministers and defense ministers of Norway, Sweden, and Denmark ended a two-day secret meeting at Karlstad, Sweden, today at which they discussed Scandinavian defense and political cooperation, the Swedish Foreign Office announced tonight.

A brief statement said the Scandinavian leaders conferred at Karlstad yesterday and today, and that a "new ministers' meeting" is scheduled to take place in Copenhagen after the Scandinavian defense committee has concluded its work.

Details of the talks were withheld.

Prime Ministers Tage Erlander of Sweden, Hans Hedtoft of Denmark, and Einar Gerhardsen of Norway headed their respective delegations.

The Scandinavian defense committee still is meeting in Oslo and is not scheduled to report to the three governments for several weeks.

One trip to the store—One quick "bowl-mix"—Gives me two pounds of delicious Nucoa ready to use!

Yes—"Bowl-Mix" two pounds together as quickly as one . . . get even color for attractive servings . . .

(And no extra cost tacked on for a "squeeze bag"!)

• "It's a waste of money," thousands of women tell us, "to pay two to three cents extra for margarine in a 'squeeze bag.' "

What you really want, of course, is to buy yellow margarine at the modest price it can be made for you, right in the churn—when the law permits! Until then, the makers of Nucoa refuse to add one penny of trick-package cost to this top-quality margarine.

And money isn't the only saving! With Nucoa's easy "bowl-mix" you can save time and bother by coloring two pounds together . . . make it just the degree of yellow you like . . . mold it in balls, squares or other shapes to suit your own taste.

And women say, "It colors so much more evenly!"

SAVE TIME... "BOWL-MIX" TWO POUNDS TOGETHER

ATTRACTIVE "BOWL-MIX" NUCOA SERVINGS

No Streaks or "Sunbursts"! The answer to quick, even coloring is to have Nucoa soft enough—not soupy, but about right for quick sandwich spreading. Then cream in the contents of the pure Color Wafer. In a matter of seconds, Nucoa is evenly colored—without streaks or ugly blotches—and you can mold it as you like for convenience in serving.

Chef Secret!—If you take Nucoa out of the mixing bowl for molding, leave a portion in the bottom of the bowl and mix with chopped parsley or chives. Delicious seasoning for boiled potatoes, cauliflower or carrots!

Yellow Nucoa also available in quarter-pound prints at many stores. Dues to Federal taxes and license fees, yellow Nucoa costs more than white Nucoa, but regular or yellow, it's the same delicious product.

HUSBANDS! SALUTE YOUR HOMEMAKER AND WIN $5000 (FOR HER)

Here's a chance to pay your wife a $5,000 compliment on her homemaking ability. And it will cost you nothing but a few minutes of your time. You write the winning last line in our big limerick contest—Safeway will award the $5,000 prize to your wife. (Get the idea, wives?) 107 other prizes for other entries.

World Bank Grants 2 Loans to Mexico

The World Bank yesterday granted two loans totaling $34,100,000 for electrical development in Mexico.

They were the first loans made by the Bank in six months, and were in line with President John J. McCloy's assurance last September that the Bank might make development loans in the Western Hemisphere in 1949.

Until now most of the Bank's loans have been for reconstruction purposes in war-ravaged areas. The only other development loan it ever made in Latin America was one of 16 million dollars last March for improving hydroelectric power and farm production in Chile.

The new loans to Mexico were announced shortly after Camille Gutt, managing director of the International Monetary Fund, told reporters that the new official par value of Mexican currency would be fixed soon. Gutt, just back from a six weeks' visit to eight Latin-American countries, said Latin American governments had not done enough to explain to their peoples the need for sound credit, trade and fiscal policies.

The Bank's new loans were made jointly to the Federal Electricity Commission of Mexico and the National Financiera, an official financial institution which negotiates foreign loans. Both loans are guaranteed by the Mexican government.

The first, amounting to $20,100,000, will pay for equipment and materials needed to build new generating stations, transmission lines and distribution systems in many parts of the country. The second, amounting to 10 million dollars, will be re-lent to the Mexican Light & Power Co., which provides most of the electric power and all of the electricity distribution in the Mexico City area.

The first is at 4 1/2 per cent for 25 years; the second, also for 4 1/2 per cent, is for only one year, pending a reorganization of the Mexican Light and Power Co., after which a longer-term loan may be granted.

Gutt, who heads the Bank's sister organization, the International Monetary Fund, said that everywhere he went in Latin America he found a conflict between the desire for development and the risks of inflation.

He reported Brazil, Uruguay, Colombia and Peru were all trying to some extent to check inflation. He thought Latin-American countries could cut imports further and strengthen their payments positions without affecting western Europe's export markets.

"My belief is that very often governments underestimate the capacity of their people to understand the problem, and the willingness of their people to follow hard economic policies," Gutt said.

"It would have been most useful in Latin America if the governments had explained more frankly to their peoples the need of following sound credit, trade and fiscal policies."

Gutt had an hour's talk with President Juan Peron of Argentina, which does not belong to the Monetary Fund, but said Peron "said very nicely a few generalities." Nothing was said on either side, according to Gutt, about Argentine membership in the Fund.

Thank-You Train Leaves Paris

Paris, Jan. 6 (AP).—France's thank-you message to the United States for the gift of the "Thank-you Train" left Paris tonight, ready to bear its spirit of gratitude across the sea.

United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery and French Vice Premier Andre Marie joined in the official farewells today as the train left Paris on its long trip. Monday it will be loaded aboard the freighter Magellan for the voyage to New York.

Frenchmen and Frenchwomen of all classes and regions contributed gifts to thank America for aid to France during and after both wars.

Plans call for a big reception to the Magellan in New York Harbor, with 500 planes overhead.

Drew Pearson, Washington columnist who organized the "Friendship Train," heads the United States committee which will receive the "Thank-you Train."

The gifts include a certificate from a spa near the Pyrenees for a 21-day visit by some United States former service man who wants to take a cure for skin disease.

Action for 35,000

War Games To Test Sub As Defense

One hundred warships and 35,000 soldiers, sailors and marines will begin large-scale war games next month aimed at finding out what new style submarines and planes can do to stop an amphibious invasion.

Participating will be six of the "schnorkel" equipped high-speed submarines that reportedly "sank" large numbers of troopships and war vessels in similar, smaller-scale maneuvers in Newfoundland last fall.

What to do about the new submarine has perplexed Navy chiefs. Russia is known to be building large numbers of them. Defense Secretary James Forrestal recently declared that finding a defense against the schnorkel submarine was our major military problem.

Three Canadian army platoons will take part in the exercises, which will be held in the Eastern Atlantic and Caribbean from February 14 to April 1. Climax of the maneuvers will be an amphibious assault on the island of Vieques, Puerto Rico.

Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet and joint Atlantic command, will be in overall charge of the maneuvers. Carrier-led warships of the Atlantic Fleet under Vice Admiral Donald B. Duncan will form the attacking task force support under Rear Admiral Jerauld D. Wright.

Navy shore-based aircraft under Rear Admiral R. F. Hickey and submarines under Rear Admiral James Fife, Jr., will attack Duncan's and Wright's vessels. There will be no Air Force units taking part.

The soldiers and marines making the landing will be commanded by Lieut. Gen. Keller E. Rockey.

Kashmir Gets 'Free' Election

Lake Success, Jan. 6 (NYHT).—The United Nations Commission for India and Pakistan announced today that a "free and impartial plebiscite" in Kashmir will be guaranteed by a plebiscite administrator to be nominated by Secretary General Trygve Lie.

The administrator will see that voters are not threatened or coerced; that no restrictions are placed on legitimate political activity; that all political prisoners are released; that minority groups are accorded adequate protection, and that there is "no victimization."

The post was created by the five-nation commission yesterday, setting forth the conditions under which Kashmir will decide whether to join India or Pakistan. The plebiscite was agreed to by India and Pakistan last week in connection with the truce and cease fire, arranged through Dr. Alfredo Lozano, Columbian member of the United Nations commission.

4 Representatives Sworn

Four Republican members of the House who were unable to attend the opening session Monday were sworn in yesterday. They were Representatives Woodruff of Michigan, Poulson of California, Norblad of Oregon and Cole of New York.

Anti-Peron Priest Ousted

Buenos Aires, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Archbishop of Buenos Aires has removed the Rev. Jose M. Dunphy, a foe of the Peron government, from his Buenos Aires parish.

The Archbishop, Santiago Luis Copello, took the action two days ago, without giving any reason. Father Dunphy's associates said that while the priest was not unfrocked or banned from performing his duties, in effect he is unable to do so because he now has no church. The opposition newspaper La Nacion said Father Dunphy has appealed his case to the Vatican.

Father Dunphy has been in hot water for a long time because of his anti-Peron activities. Recently he published a series of pamphlets attacking the administration of President Juan D. Peron, and since has been in difficulty because of regulations requiring priests to respect the legally constituted authority.

The priest sent a telegram to the archbishop, saying:

"I accept the order to leave the parish of Corpus Domini, making clear I consider my removal unjust and my dignity as a priest affected. I reserve the right to seek at the proper time the formation of an ecclesiastical court to judge my case in conformity with canonical right."

Life Sentences Urged for 29 Germans In Massacres of 83 U. S. Bulge Prisoners

Mitigation of death sentences to terms ranging from life imprisonment to two years and six months was recommended yesterday by a special Army commission for 29 Germans concerned in the Malmédy massacre and other war crimes.

The commission surveyed 139 death sentences which had not been executed. It agreed to the other 110.

The Malmédy cases, which involved the massacre of 83 American prisoners by a German S. S. unit during the Battle of the Bulge in the Ardennes in December, 1944, were found by the Commission to have been compromised by "highly questionable" methods of securing statements from the prisoners, which "cannot be condoned."

"Sufficient doubt is cast upon the entire proceedings because of these factors to make it unwise, in our opinion, to proceed with the executions of the death sentences," the Commission found.

It was headed by Justice Gordon

Simpson of the Texas Supreme Court. Other members were Judge Edward Van Roden of Pennsylvania and Lieut. Col. Charles W. Lawrence, Jr., of the Judge Advocate General's Department.

With respect to the Malmédy cases, the commission noted: "These offenses were committed in the heat of one of the most furious battles of the war. The Ardennes offensive by German forces began on December 16, 1944, and the members of Combat Group Peiper who committed these crimes were supposed at all hazards to reach the Maas River within two days. The assassinations which were the basis of this prosecution occurred on December 17. They are most reprehensible and merit stern retribution. However, it is extremely doubtful that an American court-martial would fix any punishment more severe than life imprisonment if it were trying members of the American Army who committed like offenses in the heat of battle."

"Moreover, the prosecution testimony in this case was made up in large part of the extrajudicial statements of the accused. Many of these statements implicated to a damaging degree other of the accused. Admittedly, some of the statements were obtained by the use of mock trials in which one or more persons attired as American officers pretended to preside as judges and others attired in Army officers' uniforms pretended to be the prosecutor and defender of the accused. The room where these proceedings were held contained a table covered with a black cloth on which stood a crucifix and burning candles. The accused was conducted to this room with a black hood over his head. The mock trials were designed, among other things, to gain the confidence of the accused in his supposed defense attorney and thus to elicit a statement from him."

The Commission recommended that the death sentences on these twelve men be commuted to imprisonment for life.

The commission concurred in the recommendation of the War Crimes Board of Review last August that an original sentence of death for Josef Valentin Seiler be commuted to two years and six months commencing February 6, 1946. Seiler was in command of an AA battery on Borkum Island, in the North Sea. An American bomber made a forced landing there and the crew of seven surrendered. Seiler passed on a superior's order that the prisoners be marched to the airport by the longest of three possible routes, which took them through the densely populated portion of the town. They were set on by the townspeople and all were killed.

At the Dachau trials, as distinct from the Malmédy trials, the commission found, there was "no general or sympathetic use of improper methods to secure prosecution evidence."

When the investigation started 152 death sentences already had been carried out. Kenneth C. Royall, in appointing the special commission, ordered the remaining 139 stayed pending outcome of the investigation. Army spokesmen said tonight that the commission's recommendations had not yet been acted upon.

The Malmédy prisoners appealed to the Supreme Court last year, but the court decided on a split vote that it had no jurisdiction.

The commission recommended that the present system for considering clemency petitions should be supplanted by a permanent program as soon as practicable.

Thomas' Trial Stayed Again For Checkup

By The United Press

The trial of Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) on salary kickback charges yesterday was postponed until February 7 to give physicians time to decide whether he can be tried without endangering his life.

The 54-year-old former chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, who recently suffered an internal hemorrhage from a stomach ulcer, has been undergoing physical examinations at Walter Reed Hospital since Monday.

Thomas originally was scheduled to be tried January 10, but a postponement until January 17 was ordered so he could be examined at Walter Reed.

Yesterday, Federal Judge Henry A. Schweinhart ordered the new postponement after United States Attorney George Morris Fay said hospital physicians reported it would take at least two weeks to complete their studies.

Thomas' counsel has given Schweinhart an affidavit from the Congressman's New Jersey physician, saying a recurrence of the hemorrhages "might very well prove fatal." It said physical or mental strain might provoke another attack.

last Monday, when the Eightieth Congress went out of business. But Stripling has stayed on to help get out a final report on what the committee has done in the last two years.

The report, he told reporters, goes to committee members tomorrow for their approval and probably will be made public next week.

Who will become the new chief investigator for the committee hasn't been decided yet. That will be up to the members, and it isn't sure who all of them will be.

Except for a hitch in the Army during the war, Stripling has been with the committee since its founding 10 years ago. His name has been in the headlines frequently ever since.

Before joining the committee staff, he was a Capitol employee for eight years, under the wing of former Representative Martin Dies of Texas—the first chairman of the committee.

Stripling Quits Post With House Probers

By The Associated Press

Robert E. Stripling has resigned formally as chief investigator of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

The 36-year-old Texan has played a major part in spectacular committee investigations into Red operations, spying, and Communist activity in Hollywood. Now he plans to return to Texas, take a "long rest," and then "accept a position offered me in the oil industry."

Special Sign Campaign

Barrett said all law enforcement departments of Maryland and Virginia are cooperating with District police in a special sign campaign.

To be placed on practically all speed limit signs within a 25-mile radius of Washington, they will read: "Attention—no parking on streets near inaugural parade—park in suburbs—use public transportation."

Inaugural Committee Chairman Melvin Hildreth called on President Truman in the morning to present him with a special inaugural automobile tag labeled "No. 1."

Hildreth said the President expressed "100 per cent" satisfaction with preparations for the celebration and showed much interest in details of the show.

Blinded Vets to Meet

The District of Columbia and Maryland regional groups of the Blinded Veterans Association, with about 40 members, announced they will hold a meeting at 2 p. m. Saturday in the Board of Trade board room to discuss plans for participating in the inauguration.

Final preparations were being made yesterday for the inaugural dinner to be given by the presidential electors at the Mayflower Hotel at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday, January 19.

In addition to the 531 electors from the 48 States, the guest list includes almost all State Governors, members of the Cabinet, Senate, and House of Representatives, Justices of the Supreme Court, ranking Army and Navy officers, Democratic committee-men, Government officials and professional men.

U. S. Seizes Planes Believed for Egypt

Gives Unity Call

Ex-Premier Forms New Iraq Cabinet

Baghdad, Iraq, Jan. 6 (AP).—Gen. Nuri Pasha es Said, one-time Premier, formed a new Iraq cabinet today. It replaced the government of Muzahim Amin al Pachachi, who resigned earlier in the day.

Nuri Pasha said: "The liberation of Palestine requires the exertion of all efforts. I will do my utmost to unify all efforts within and without Iraq to realize the emergence of an Arab nation from this cruel trial successfully." Students have been demonstrating in the streets of Baghdad, demanding full-scale resumption of the Arab war against Israel and have been pressing for the fight against the Jews of Palestine to go on.

Senate Gets Daylight Time Bill for D. C.

Washington now has an improved chance to get daylight saving time on time this summer and every summer.

A bill to bring this about was introduced yesterday in the Senate by Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.). It was the first Washington bill sponsored by the new chairman of the Senate District Committee.

McGrath sponsored the same bill for the past two years, and led the fight to get daylight saving time for the District in 1947 and 1948. Each time, Congress modified McGrath's plan by making it effective for one summer only. And each summer daylight saving started in Washington after other cities in this region had shifted their clocks.

The bill would give the Commissioners permanent authority to order daylight saving time into effect each summer, in time with other cities.

Also reintroduced in the Senate was a bill to increase from 10 to 13 the number of judges for the Municipal Court here. It was presented by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) and was sent to the Senate District Committee.

In the House, Representative William Lemke (R., N. Dak.) reintroduced his District anti-violence bill. It went to the House District Committee, where the measure has been pigeonholed in previous Congresses.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 6 (AP).—The United States Government today seized a cargo of five crates military planes which it listed as an illegal arms shipment believed bound for Egypt.

Assistant United States Attorney Roger M. Yancey said the declaration on the planes showed them bound for "Djibuti, Abyssinia," but that the Government believed they would be diverted to Egypt without State Department authorization.

Djibouti actually is the capital of French Somaliland and not in Abyssinia. Yancey said the five planes were valued by the Army at a total of $250,000. Customs officials prevented the loading of the planes aboard the Egyptian passenger ship the Mohammed Ali el Kabir just before it sailed last week, Yancey said.

United States Attorney Alfred E. Modarelli said the State Department reported the planes were listed as owned by a John A. Romano of 115 King st., New York City.

The United States attorney had been unable to find any Romano at the New York City address.

350,000 German POWs Reported in Russia

Stuttgart, Germany, Jan. 6 (AP).—A spokesman for the prisoners of war committee of the South German State Council said today that there are "at least" 350,000 German POWs in Russia while the fate of 1,500,000 who were reported "missing" on the eastern front during the war is unknown. Pastor Eduard Merten, head of the Hesse POW Committee, said some of the 1,500,000 "missing" were still alive and the official figure of 350,000 POWs was probably too low.

Israel, Egypt to Talk Peace

Two important issues must be negotiated simultaneously.

First, Israel and Egypt must arrange the armistice called for by the Security Council in an order to Arab States and the Jews on November 16.

At the same time, they must negotiate on the Council order that the Israelis withdraw to positions held before he present Israeli-Egyptian warfare erupted October 14.

British Say Israel Have Post in Egypt

London, Jan. 6 (NYHT).—The British Foreign Office declared tonight it had information indicating that Israeli forces have established at least one permanent military post in Egypt.

The Foreign Office also outlined in detail the deliveries of military equipment which, it said, Israel had received from Czechoslovakia.

Refuting the Israeli statement to Washington that all Israeli forces had been withdrawn from Egypt, the Foreign Office said its information came from British sources, presumably the embassy at Cairo.

"This latest information," the Foreign Office spokesman commented acidly "demonstrates how much reliance can be placed upon Israeli statements that all Jewish forces had been withdrawn."

At the time of the U. N. truce and arms embargo June 11, 1948, the spokesman said, the Israeli air force was known to have consisted of approximately 40 airplanes.

By mid-December, however, the strength had grown to a total of 114—40 fighters, 12 light bombers, 10 heavy bombers, 22 transports and 30 light communications and training planes, he said.

The spokesman said almost all the fighters had come from Czechoslovakia.

The spokesman said Czechoslovakia provided a special airfield for clearing planes and equipment to Israel.

It was estimated that about 80 tons of arms are flown to Israel from Czechoslovakia each week. The transports, he said, usually refuel at small airfields in Yugoslavia.

Cures Time Ills

New Wonder Atomic Clock Is Unveiled

The National Bureau of Standards yesterday unveiled its newest wonder, an atomic clock designed to cure the scientific world of time ills.

The instrument, it was explained, is unrelated to nuclear fission, but gets its name and accuracy from the "invariable" vibrations of an atom.

Dr. Edward U. Condon, bureau director, said it provides an entirely new and heretofore unequalled method of measuring not only time but frequency. It should prove an "invaluable tool," he said, for research in medicine, chemistry, physics, engineering and electronics.

The clock, too big for the kitchen wall, is not needed for such mundane things as boiling an egg. But it may prove to be just what the scientists want as a precision instrument for such things as more accurately locating the stars, or mapping out extraterrestrial flights, according to its inventor, Dr. Harold Lyons.

Spills Seconds Accurately
In such scientific matters, the splitting of the second is important. And the atomic clock was said to be able to split a second to the accuracy of one part in 20 million. Potentially, it can be further improved to one part in 10 billions, it was claimed.

One of its first practical uses, it was explained, may be to regulate radio broadcasting frequencies to open up new and sorely-needed broadcasting channels in the crowded radar-television spectrum. Present station allocations allow for a drift of frequency. With atomic clock control, such frequencies could be monitored down to more closely defined space limits.

Measuring standard of the atomic clock demonstrated yesterday is the bouncing nitrogen atom which with three hydrogen atoms make up the ammonium molecule. It is calculated to vibrate with unerring accuracy some 24-billion times a second in the molecule.

"Locked In" to Atomic Standard
In operation, the infinitesimally small variations that occasionally occurred in quartz crystal timepieces are "corrected" automatically by electronic devices which compare the crystal's output to the highly more constant performance of the atom. Such effect, it was explained, means that the clockwork is "locked in" to an atomic standard.

Bureau scientists said the principles employed should also improve astronomical observations, communications systems, surveying, long-range navigation, and such things as radio filters, telephone relays and radar.

Present time measuring standards are based on the rotation of the earth, as observed in the 24-hour period it takes from telescope-fixing a star until the earth comes around again to the same fixation point.

This has proved itself to be not as reliable as scientists would like. For instance, they said, the earth is slowing down. The difference in a decade isn't enough to worry the layman, they admitted, but to scientists trying to make millionth-of-a-second measurements, it's been rather distressing.

Bedell Smith Enters Hospital In Florida

Punta Gorda, Fla., Jan. 6 (P).—Jim Kelly, owner of the Eagle's Nest hunting lodge here, said Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, United States Ambassador to Russia, was admitted to Charlotte Hospital here today. Kelly said Smith had a recurrence of a stomach ailment while on a hunting trip with Gen. Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff.

Buck Hill Falls, Pa., Jan. 6 (P). A policy committee of Protestant missionary leaders of North America today strongly recommended that "Christians approach Communists with love and good will."

The recommendation was one of many comprising missionary policy drafted by a committee and referred to member denominations for consideration.

The 61 Protestant denominations embraced in the 56-year-old Foreign Missions Conference were urged to adopt quickly missionary programs to provide food, clothing, shelter, family security and recreation as well as Christian faith.

The recommended policy also urged: "The Christian should approach Communists with humility and confidence and intelligent understanding."

"The Christian should be pro-Christian, not anti-Communist."

In its recommended mission policy for member denominations, the conference acknowledged Marxism as "the Christian church's number one rival in winning men's minds and hearts."

"Communism has spread with the speed of lightning because it offers the world's underprivileged masses a great and immediate hope of freedom from their bonds and disabilities," said the policy statement.

"Yet perhaps the greatest fact of our generation is that underprivileged people with one voice have begun to ask for a better standard of living. This awareness and the resulting breakdown of established patterns may provide our greatest Christian opportunity since the days of the apostles."

"If this opportunity of the Christian church is to be grasped," the statement continued, "churches at home must greatly increase their mission support."

Keith Files
Suit Over
Sons' Custody

Mrs. Robert M. Waggaman, Washington socialite, has been ordered to appear in District Court, January 12, to explain why temporary custody of her two sons has not been given to her divorced husband.

In a suit filed in District Court yesterday, Norman C. Keith, former husband of Mrs. Waggaman and president of the Petroleum Export Co. of New York, charged that his former wife has refused to give up to him their two boys, Norman, 7, and Ralph, 6, under terms of their separation agreement here in February, 1947.

The habeas corpus suit said their agreement stipulated that the father would have the children from January to July, and the mother the remainder of each year.

Keith, who lives in Greenwich, Conn., charged that since last February when he voluntarily returned the children to their mother, he has not been permitted to see them except in her presence.

When Keith asked to see his children last Christmas, the suit said further, Mrs. Waggaman replied with the following telegram, dated December 27, 1948:

"Sorry children's holiday booked. Regarding your calls, I was out and my husband has requested you not telephone the house so please respect his wishes."

Mrs. Waggaman was ordered to appear before Judge David A. Pine.

Victor Fleming Dies En Route to Hospital

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Motion Picture Director Victor Fleming, 59, died of a heart attack to-night en route to a hospital near Phoenix.

One of the biggest directors in the film world, Fleming had recently directed the multi-million dollar epic, "Joan of Arc."

Firemen In, Too Barrett Asks 8 Holidays For Police

Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett yesterday asked the District Commissioners to seek legislation granting policemen time off on eight legal holidays a year or else compensatory time.

The city heads took the matter under advisement. They disclosed they also will meet with Fire Chief Clement Murphy on a similar arrangement for the firemen.

Barrett told the Commissioners that almost all municipal workers, other than policemen and firemen, now receive double pay for holidays worked, while the uniformed forces are granted no such consideration.

The eight holidays are New Year's Day, George Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, the Fourth of July, Labor Day, Armistice Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

At present, policemen work a 48-hour week and firemen a 72-hour week while other District employees are on a 40-hour week.

Fay Declares Police Are Lax

On the fact that in this particular type of case "No reason except inconvenience of the officers and delay in preparing papers and getting them before a magistrate, appears for the failure to seek a search warrant," and concludes, "but these reasons are no justification for by-passing the constitutional requirement..."

"Since the decision on December 13, 1948," Fay's letter continued, "I have personally observed and have received information from other members of my staff concerning some of the cases which are being presented to this office for prosecution, and in a great many instances the cases reveal that no attention has been paid to the standards of law set forth in the McDonald decision."

"This office intends at all times to authorize and proceed with prosecution for violation of the gaming and other laws where it is felt that the facts and law warrant such action."

New U. S. Social Pattern Seen

Enactment of social legislation by the new Congress "which will set a new and resolute pattern for our democracy" was forecast last night by Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing.

Ewing discussed "New Patterns for Social Justice" at the dinner of the National Conference of Christians and Jews at the Mayflower Hotel.

He paid tribute to President Truman for his "unswerving allegiance to the basic principles of social progress, including a system of prepaid medical insurance."

Special note was made of the phrase "without further delay" used in the President's message in reference to his recommendation for health insurance.

The FSA administrator warned that any "delaying tactics on the part of those powerful interests which are opposed to this measure will be interpreted for what they are—a plain effort to thwart the will of the people."

In commenting on President Truman's civil rights program, Ewing recalled his own efforts last year to open up internships and teaching privileges in Gallinger Hospital to young Negro doctors and Howard University students.

Justice William O. Douglas, of the United States Supreme Court, presided at the dinner.

The memo to the police force was signed by Inspector Floyd A. Truscott, assistant superintendent and executive officer, by direction of Police Chief Barrett.

Neither Fay nor Barrett would comment yesterday on Fay's letter or the police memo.

Wilson Installed As President of Capital Kiwanis

A. Herrmann Wilson, electrical contractor and president of the Electrical Construction Co., was installed as president of the Capital Kiwanis Club of Washington at a luncheon meeting yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

A native of Washington, Wilson attended George Washington University and Carnegie Tech. He is president of the Washington chapter of the National Electrical Contractors Association. He and his wife, the former Evelyn Nash live at 4528 Alton pl. n.w.

Other officers installed were: Harry L. Merrick, first vice president; Leon Chatelain, jr., second vice president; Bruce Baird, treasurer; James B. Edmunds, secretary; John G. Bell, Everett J. Bothby, Raymond C. Briggs, Frank H. Haines, Roland P. Harrington, Edmund F. Jewell, Adam Stockton King, E. K. Morris and Thornton W. Owen, directors.

Brain Surgery Seen as Cure For Epileptics

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

More than 120,000 of the Nation's 800,000 so-called epileptics could be cured by brain surgery, a Washington neurosurgeon estimated here yesterday.

The costly treatments, however, are available to but a limited few, said Dr. Arthur Morris, associate chief of neurosurgery at Doctor's Hospital.

He spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Washington Council for the Handicapped, at Hotel Burlington, on "Recent Advances in the Treatment of Epileptics."

Dr. Morris said the cure rate has been established at the Montreal Neurological Institute, with which he was associated until coming to Washington seven months ago to carry on similar work here.

There, he said, more than 20 per cent of persons suffering convulsive seizures were found by electroencephalograph recordings to be victims of localized brain lesions. And of this group, he said, some 65 per cent were freed of further seizures by brain operations.

Such work, he admitted, is highly specialized. It requires experts skilled in analysis of the findings of the intricate brain wave machine, and surgeons adept in work on the human brain, both highly restrictive fields.

As to the use of drugs to control seizures, Dr. Morris said the therapy stands today in about the same position as diabetes in 1923—just before discovery of insulin.

However, he argued, since epilepsy is a symptom rather than a disease, medical research in it should be directed at the causes "rather than at controlling the symptom, convulsive seizures."

At present, said Dr. Morris, there are no diagnostic centers for epilepsy in United States, and only a few qualified experts on the condition. He pointed out that only 1 cent of the medical research dollar of today is being used for research in epilepsy. By contrast, he said, infantile paralysis, with its 125,000 sufferers, gets 45 cents for its research.

He praised efforts of the American Federation for the Physically Handicapped for fathering a bill to be introduced at this session of Congress to obtain Federal funds for research in epilepsy. One feature of the bill, it was said, would provide for the setting up of an epilepsy diagnostic center here.

British Give Medical System Wide Approval in Half-Year

London, Jan. 6 (U.P.)—Socialized medicine began its second six months of operation in Britain today with no organized opposition from doctors and with wide public acceptance.

There are 23,351 doctors in England and Scotland, and only 2847 have not yet joined government medical panels.

Citizens are free to reject the service or accept it in whole or in part. So far, 93 per cent of the population has joined.

Many doctors still denounce the plan, but admit there is no longer any organized opposition, even though the scheme was born amid more bitterness than any other nationalization project.

"After six months," the medical

Child eye health was discussed by four District ophthalmologists yesterday at the first meeting of the Eye Health Institute in the auditorium of the National Museum, Constitution ave. and 10th st. n.w.

Dr. Ines E. Wilbur, vice president of the D. C. Society for the Prevention of Blindness, which sponsors the institute, presided. More than 100 Public Health and D. C. Health Department nurses and teachers attended the session.

The four speakers were Dr. M. Noel Stow, 1746 K st. n.w., who discussed "Structure and Function of the Eye"; Dr. Frank D. Costenbader, 1605 22d st. n.w., who spoke on "Eye Muscles, Strabismus, or Cross-eye"; Dr. H. B. Downey, who delivered a paper by Dr. James N. Grear on "Eye Diseases in Children and How to Prevent Eye Defects"; and Dr. J. Thomas Schnebly, who discussed "Refraction and Glasses."

All the ophthalmologists stressed the importance of early diagnosis. Even routine testing of preschool children reveals defects at a time when most can be done to protect them, Dr. Schnebly said.

Additional sessions of the clinic are scheduled between 4 and 6 p. m. for January 13 and 27, and February 3.

Approval Asked For Food Stamp Experiment Plan

By The Associated Press

The Agriculture Department wants to experiment on a food stamp program for (1) improving diets of low income groups and (2) using food surpluses.

Officials disclosed yesterday that the department has asked the Budget Bureau to approve a request for Congressional authority to experiment. They expected Bureau approval, because the stamp program is in line with White House recommendations.

In his message to Congress Wednesday, President Truman said measures were needed for increasing food consumption by low income persons as one way of providing farmers with bigger markets.

Under a plan used before the war, low income families were issued government stamps which could be used at grocery stores for purchase of surplus foods. The government redeemed the stamps from grocers.

Agricultural Unit Makes Dr. Spanton Honorary Member

Dr. William T. Spanton, chief of the Agricultural Education Service, United States Office of Education, has been made an honorary member of Alpha Zeta Fraternity, a professional agricultural organization.

The fraternity, which has just completed its biennial convocation here, similarly honored Dr. Clarence Poe of Raleigh, N. C.

More than 80 young men from agricultural colleges all over the country attended the convocation. Also present were Dr. Charles W. Burkett of Miami Beach, Fla., and Dr. John F. Cunningham, dean emeritus of the College of Agriculture of Ohio State University, cofounders of the fraternity 51 years ago.

More than 100 Department of Agriculture officials are members of the fraternity. One of the fraternity's national officers is Dr. L. H. Dennis, executive secretary of the American Vocational Association, which has its headquarters in Washington.

Miller Suggest Improvements For Glenn Dale Sanatorium

A six-point program for improvements at the District-owned Glenn Dale Sanatorium was outlined yesterday by Representative A. L. Miller (R., Neb.) in letters to city officials.

Representative Miller, who is a physician, made a personal investigation of the tuberculosis institution after a woman patient there was operated on the wrong side recently.

The Congressman wrote Commissioner Guy Mason and Health Officer George C. Ruhland suggesting the following:

1. Removal of the Glenn Dale business manager, Paul Keen, from "a building which was originally built to house physicians . . . The business manager is not on call as are the doctors. He could very easily live outside and commute to and from the sanatorium."

2. Doctors and nurses should be permitted to leave the facility for medical meetings and refresher courses on their own time. "Compelling them to sign in and out and punch a time clock is hardly treating them like professional personnel."

3. An assistant superintendent, a physician, spends his time on property management and should be transferred to medical service.

4. "To help the morale of the nurses," their visiting relatives should be permitted to use cots in nurses' rooms without the present $1 charge.

5. "Serving of meals could be greatly improved. They should be served warm and in a tasteful manner" and dieticians should visit patients not eating well to check on the reason.

6. A standard procedure should be adopted that no patient should be operated on by any surgeon without a complete consultation with the resident surgeon and staff within 24 hours before the operation.

"There should be a complete physical examination of the patient by the surgeon who is to do the work and he should be assisted by the surgeon in charge of the hospital."

Commissioner Mason said he is studying the report, but had no immediate comment.

Man to Be Returned Here on Mail Charge

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 6 (U.P.)—Maurice Paul Holsinger, 34, who was disguised as a woman when arrested here this week, will be returned to Washington, D. C., to stand trial on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Federal Judge Charles A. Dewey signed the removal order today after Holsinger pleaded innocent.

Donnella Gets D. C. Counsel Assistant Post

George F. Donnella, assistant inspector of claims in the District corporation counsel's office, was yesterday promoted to assistant corporation counsel by the District Commissioners.

The Commissioners also approved salary increases for four assistant corporation counsel positions caused by the resignation of John J. Donnella, Jr., who left to become special assistant to Attorney General Tom C. Clark.

Donnella, who is 32, resides with his wife and child at 330 20th st. ne. He was graduated from Eastern High School here and the Columbia University Law School. Before joining the Army during World War II, he was employed as an inspector in the District Highways Department.

Hulbert B. Pair, in the litigation section, was promoted to a E-5 grade and a salary of $5905 a year. Henry E. Wixon of the litigation and contracts section was promoted to a P-4 grade and a $4902 salary. William S. Chestnut, litigation section, was raised to a P-3 grade and a $4150 salary, and John F. Doyle, litigation section, to a P-2, $3397 salary.

Reno Ministers Act to Curb Marriage Race

Reno, Nev., Jan. 6 (U.P.)—The ministers of the Nation's divorce capital adopted a code of ethics today hoping to curb the mad scramble among some of them for Reno's $250,000 annual marrying business.

The code outlaws taxi-chasing and "deals" with courthouse employees, and others who "act as solicitors."

It sternly cautioned the pastors against the common practice of marrying couples whenever they happened to be when they got the idea to say "I do."

About half of the 24,272 marriages performed in Reno in 1948 went to the two district judges and the justice of peace. The city's 50 ministers divided the remaining and the competition, as one observed, was "somewhat cut-throat."

The new code said: "The minister should strive to be human in all of his relationships... but he should never lower his ideals in order to appear a 'good fellow' or 'one of the boys.'"

The ministers mentioned no enforcement machinery for the code.

Col. W. E. Schooley Heads Division In Red Cross Drive

Col. William E. Schooley, assistant vice president of the American Security & Trust Co., has been appointed chairman of the national corporations division of the 1949 Red Cross fund drive, H. Randolph Maddox, general campaign chairman, announced yesterday.

In addition to his banking duties, Colonel Schooley is commanding officer of Reserve Finance Training Group at Fort Myer. He served with the Finance Service Division of the War Department from 1942 to 1946, receiving the Legion of Merit. He also is past master of the Grand Lodge, FAAM, of the District of Columbia, and deputy on the supreme council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry for the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States.

The responsibility of the division, Maddox said, is to solicit gifts from corporations of national scope having branch offices in Washington.

The seventh annual drive of Red Cross chapters in Greater Washington will commence March 1.

Benjamin Cohen Wed to Former U. N. Secretary

Lake Success, N. Y., Jan. 6 (U.P.)—The marriage of Benjamin Cohen, assistant U. N. secretary-general in charge of public information, was disclosed today by friends at U. N. headquarters.

They said Cohen announced the marriage at a New Year's Eve party of secretary employees last week.

The bride was Rita Mayer, former secretary in the film division of the U. N. public information department, the friends said.

Cohen, 32, is a native of Chile. He is well known in Washington, where he was secretary of the Chilean Ambassador, a professor at Georgetown University, and a prominent society figure.

Cohen also served as Chilean Ambassador to Bolivia and Venezuela.

All-Time Record Set In Nevada Gambling

Reno, Nev., Jan. 6 (U.P.)—Just short of one billion dollars was bet on Nevada gambling tables during 1948, for an all-time record.

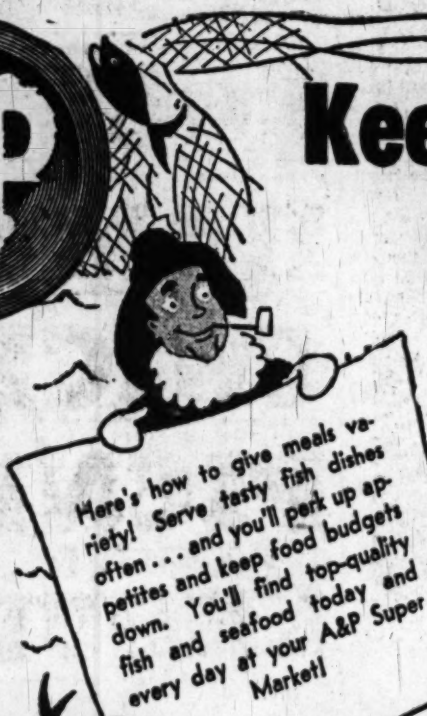

The State Tax Commission reported today it collected $1,102,000 in taxes on gambling. Figuring casinos keep slightly under 3 per cent of all money that crosses the tables, this means at least $957,227,000 was gambled in a year.

Group of Citizens of Strasburg, Va., Meet To Consider Improvement of School Facilities

Strasburg, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—The town's high and elementary school association was meeting tonight to decide what to do about the school facilities now that a $200,000 bond issue for construction at 200 students of the high school was voted. The students stayed out of their classes for about two hours and held a downtown demonstration against the bond issue's failure.

The same students who walked through the town with placards that charged Shenandoah County failed to give them adequate school facilities were at their desks as usual today. Principal George Grove said the school's activity was normal.

The school head told his charges yesterday: "I'm not going to quarrel with you for leaving school this morning, because I know just how you feel, but we must do these things in an orderly way and not reflect any discredit on our school or ourselves."

Shenandoah County citizens Tuesday defeated the referendum which would have permitted the county to bond itself for the improvements planned at Strasburg.

King-Smith Center Faces Funds Crisis

The King-Smith Foundation, an adult education center at 2118 Massachusetts ave. nw., announced yesterday it "must immediately cease to operate unless financial aid of at least $10,000 is obtained within a week."

Originally an exclusive girls' finishing school known as the King-Smith Studio School, the institution became an adult education center in 1942, known as the King-Smith School of Creative Art, and last October changed its name to the King-Smith Foundation.

The Foundation is a nonprofit corporation teaching ceramics, writing, dance, poetry, theater, painting, semantics, sculpture and music to 128 students.

The ages of the students range from 5 to 60. A recent survey showed that student professions ranged from barmaid to a member of the Atomic Energy Commission. The present financial crisis in the school, originally established approximately 20 years ago by Grace and August King-Smith, is the result of a split in the faculty last year of the King School of Creative Arts.

A portion of that faculty resigned and started a similar school in New York City.

The $10,000 is urgently required to pay faculty salaries and utilities for November through January and other estimated expense to February 1.

Truman Speech Wins 100 Pct. Ickes Rating

Harold Ickes, former Secretary of the Interior, told President Truman yesterday his "State of the Union" message was "good on all counts."

Ickes after a call on Mr. Truman at the White House, was asked by reporters whether he might "help" the President put over his proposals, possibly by returning to the Government. He replied: "Now you're running wild."

Ickes left the Cabinet after splitting with Mr. Truman over the nomination of Edwin W. Pauley as Navy Undersecretary. The nomination later was withdrawn.

School Heads Study 10-Year Va. Program

Richmond, Va., Jan. 6 (AP).—The meeting of the State Advisory Council of Superintendents to discuss a proposed 10-year school improvement program for Virginia will be continued tomorrow, D. J. Howard, assistant State superintendent of public instruction, said today.

Howard had no comment on today's opening session at which the program, initiated by G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction, was outlined in detail.

A report on the advisory council's meeting will be submitted to the State Board of Education January 10. After the board has approved a statement of tentative goals, these will be published in pamphlet form. In addition, a series of public meetings will be scheduled for a general discussion of the proposed program.

Miller, who is ill, did not attend today's meeting.

Young's Ouster Is Demanded

To oppose Young's continuance as a Commissioner.

McMillan said a Commissioner was needed in place of Young, who would cooperate better with Congress. McMillan said that when he was chairman of the District Committee (in the Seventy-ninth Congress) the committee cooperated with the Commissioners, "but I don't think they gave the committee all the cooperation they could have, and I think a little more cooperation would help."

He declined to give a specific instance of Young's failure to cooperate.

"If we're going to get anything through the House for the District," added McMillan "we've got to have Commissioners who will cooperate with Congress as a whole."

Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), ranking majority member of the Senate District Committee, would not comment directly on Young's speech. But he said he was unshaken in his determination to oppose the sales tax; and to urge instead an increased Federal financial contribution to the District.

Young said in his speech he had done everything but his "big, handsome" Senator Johnston in the jaw to get him to agree to the sales tax. Then he referred to Johnston as a "lovely fellow" and predicted the Senator was not going to fight so hard.

Johnston, with a booming laugh, said last night he couldn't stop fighting against the sales tax now, because somebody might think he was afraid of getting hit on the jaw.

Johnston in 1946 delayed Young's reconfirmation for a period of several weeks, but did not fully explain the reason for the delay, or for his final decision in favor of Young.

Representative Stefan said of Commissioner Young's speech "I thought it was a good, honest, sincere speech. Commissioner Young is ABC to Young. He knew that there was not going to be enough money for schools, for snow removal, for getting out of this traffic snarl. He wanted to impress the new members with the fiscal conditions of the city."

"The audience was not in a mood to listen to that kind of a speech. They came for entertainment. Several members told me it was a good speech but too long. It was a well-prepared speech, and in my judgment he did not talk long enough. I've heard many favorable comments on the speech."

Stefan said that Washington has the best governed and the best policed city in the United States.

Apartment Tenants Fight Cooperative

Twenty-three tenants of East Florence Courts, an apartment building at 2153 California st. nw., have organized a committee to fight eviction by prospective cooperative owners of the apartment units.

The building, which has 29 apartments, has been transferred by previous owners to East Florence Courts, Inc., a company which is offering the units for sale on a cooperative basis at prices ranging from $6500 to $11,000.

Five tenants have been served with 30-day eviction notices because they would not permit prospective purchasers to see their apartments, and one eviction suit has been brought, according to Allan L. Kamerow of Kamerow & Kamerow, attorneys for the cooperative group. Its principal officers are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Farmer of 2921 Albemarle st. nw. Brig. Gen. Edward W. Smith, USA (ret.), who heads the tenants' committee, declared legal action will have to be taken to get the tenants out. "We'll fight it," he said.

Meanwhile, District Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell said he hopes to submit to the District Commissioners next week a proposed amendment to the District Rent Control Act to protect tenants in similar cases.

As cooperative apartments are becoming more numerous here, he said, "some safeguards are certainly necessary so apartment tenants won't have to buy their units at any price quoted or find themselves in the street."

Kamerow said the eviction suit, against Mrs. Roy K. Jones, was brought because her lease provided for visits by prospective purchasers, which she refused, according to the attorney. It will receive a hearing in Landlord and Tenant Court on Wednesday.

Cairo Hotel Requests 8 Per Cent Rent Hike

District Rent Control Examiner William F. Mansfield took under advisement a request for an 8 per cent rent increase on 50 units in the Cairo Hotel, 1615 Q st. nw., following a hearing yesterday.

William E. Carey, Jr., representing about 30 tenants, said a tentative agreement with the owners of an 8 per cent increase was based on redecoration of the units before the rent was raised. He said the tenants would oppose the increase at this time, pending the redecoration, which was planned for after inauguration day at the rate of about two units a week.

Hearings Listed Today For Two Apartments

District rent examiners will hold hearings at 9:30 a. m. today on proposed rent increases on 178 units of Cathedral Mansions, North, at 3100 Connecticut ave. nw., and 72 units of the Manchester, 3426 M st. nw. Examiner William F. Mansfield will hear the Cathedral Mansions case. Present rents range from $32.50 a month for one room to $72.50 for four rooms. Proposed rents are from $35.39 to $78.95. Examiner James G. Tyson will hold the Manchester hearing. Present rents range from $35 a month for one room to $65 for two rooms. Proposed rents are from $42.50 to $72.50.

"and yet we do it on a relatively small amount of money."

"The City of Washington renders more free service to the Federal Government and to the people generally than any other city in the United States and does it with less confusion," Stefan said.

"I'm deeply sympathetic to the service Russ Young rendered to the citizens of Washington and to the Government generally."

"I listened to every word he said. It was an extemporaneous speech, and it's hard to make a speech to an audience that doesn't want to listen. But he endeavored to tell the new members of Congress, as members of the city council of Washington, just what the city is up against. He did it extemporaneously and he did it in a very splendid manner."

Lauds Sincerity of Purpose

"I know his sincerity of purpose to serve the city and the Government to the best of his ability and I personally feel he's done a good job," Stefan concluded.

At one point in his speech, Commissioner Young commented on District-Federal fiscal relations. He said if the Federal Government paid for District-supplied water the bill would come to $850,000 or close to a million dollars.

For the past two years, one million dollars of the 12 million dollar annual Federal payment to the District has been allotted to the city's water fund.

3 Bills Introduced To Cut Md. Pay Tax

By Philip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 6.—Three bills to reduce the State personal income tax were among the 148 legislative measures introduced today in the Maryland General Assembly.

The legislators, who during the afternoon heard Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., tell the State's progress during the past two years, recessed tonight until 8 p. m. Monday.

The Senate recessed at 5:29 p. m. and the House at 7:05 p. m. The House recess was held up by its leaders resolved the question of major committee assignments.

Delegate Charles M. Bandiere of Baltimore City introduced two companion bills to effect the income tax reduction. Another bill to lower the tax was introduced by Delegate Albert L. Sklar (D., Baltimore, 4th).

Bandiere's bills would increase tax exemptions, keeping the tax at 2 per cent for earned income and 3 per cent for unearned income. Under present laws, the earned income tax would be increased to 2½ per cent and the unearned income tax to 5 per cent, effective on 1948 income.

Under Bandiere's bills, exemption for dependents would be increased to $600 for one dependent, $850 each for two dependents and $900 each for three or more dependents. The present law provides for $400 exemptions for each dependent.

Sklar's bill would provide for reducing the tax on earned income from 2½ to 2 per cent.

The income tax had been raised by the 1947 Legislature. Governor Lane several weeks ago said he expected to ask that the rate be restored to 2 per cent.

Sales Tax Pay Off

The Governor, in his message today, however, made no mention of financial matters, other than to say he would have something to say about them later.

Reduction in the income tax has been proposed frequently as a result of the unexpectedly large returns from the State's sales tax. The sales tax has resulted in a 20-million-dollar surplus in the State's general funds.

Little opposition to the reduction is expected, although the League of Women Voters and several other organizations have urged the income tax be increased as planned to aid in meeting the State's tremendous increase in school and welfare expenditures.

Among the other bills introduced was one by the Prince Georges County delegation to increase from $800,000 to $1,200,000 the ceiling on special improvement districts.

Prince Georges has used the special improvement district plan for improvement of streets, drainage and other such construction, paying for the work through special taxes on the communities concerned.

148 Bills Introduced

The present $800,000 limit on such improvements has been almost reached in some Prince Georges districts.

Of the total of 148 bills introduced, 144 were introduced as result of the activities of the Legislative Council.

One of the council-backed bills would validate the taxicab regulation powers of Montgomery County Council and of the county public utilities agent.

The present powers of these bodies were held in conflict with a State motor vehicle law in a recent decision of the Montgomery County Circuit Court. The proposed new law would provide that where there is a local law providing for regulation of taxicabs the State law provision prohibiting local regulations of motor vehicles will not apply.

Another bill which would affect Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties is one abolishing the Orphans Courts of the State. Their duties would be transferred to the Register of Wills and the Circuit Court of each county.

Exemption of fraternal organizations from real and personal property taxes on all holdings, not commercial, also will affect several groups in the near-Washington counties. Repeal of an apparently unnecessary section of the State code resulted in the State Tax Commission questioning continued exemption of these groups.

Another controversial bill introduced was one which would empower the State Roads Commission to designate any highway, freeway or parkway having a traffic density of more than 1000 vehicles daily as a "roadside projected highway."

The Roads Commission then would regulate structures erected within 200 feet of the highway on either side except existing structures or roadside stands which

State Record Lauded by Lane In Address Before Assembly

Annapolis, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., told the Maryland General Assembly today it could feel proud of the State's accomplishments during the past two years.

In his address, delivered this afternoon, he pointed to:

1. The "long steps" Maryland has taken to improve its education system.

2. A good start on the five-year highway program.

3. The beginning work on the Chesapeake Bay bridge.

4. Advances for curing the mentally ill.

5. The beautification of the 177-year-old Capitol—the oldest American statehouse still in use.

In the review of the first two years of his administration, Lane withheld mention of what the new tax system has accomplished or what some of the future plans are.

He said he would have other messages on the 1950 budget, which most sources expect to be between 130-million and 135-million dollars, on what the state expects to spend in capital improvements (buildings)—for which 100-million dollars has been asked over a two-year period; and on plans for improvement of mental hospitals and tuberculosis sanatoria.

Of the last two years, the governor said:

New Air Safety Device Could Prevent Stalls

A Civil Aeronautics Administration study of other than air line flight accidents during 1947 shows that 902 airplanes were destroyed and 623 persons killed in crashes of a type now deemed preventable by equipping such aircraft with a simple and inexpensive safety device. This was learned yesterday.

Such a device was developed some time ago under guidance of the CAA's office of research and was given an "approved type certificate" after exhaustive flight testing. However, the CAA and the Civil Aeronautics Board (which formulates safety regulations enforced by the CAA) up to now have failed to take the final step of requiring aircraft manufacturers and operators to equip their planes with the new safeguard—just as they are now required to install safety belts and fire extinguishers on every craft that flies.

The new device is called a "stall warning indicator" and is said by the CAA to be applicable to any type airplane at a cost of $25 or less. There is no reason, CAA spokesman said, why its universal adoption would not "completely eliminate" aircraft accidents due to inadvertent stalls and the deadly tail-spins which follow them, and which are now charged with two thirds of the fatal accidents in private flying.

Bandit Gets $33 in Holdup Of Downtown Jewelry Store

The manager of Louis Abraham's jewelry store at 733 13th st. n.w. told police he was robbed of $33 about noon yesterday by a bushy-haired thug armed with a pistol.

"This is a stickup—give me your money," the manager, Nathaniel Weinberg, quoted the gunman as saying. There were no customers in the store at the time, Weinberg said.

The swarthy thug, described as wearing a tan topcoat, about 28 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighing about 150 pounds, calmly walked out of the store after Weinberg handed over $33 bills from the register, police reported.

Cannonade

Speaker Rayburn would be justified in resenting statements by Republican leaders that under the new House rules he will be a czar with powers exceeding those of the late Uncle Joe Cannon. Those statements have given rise to considerable misunderstanding. The Speaker has no power to deny recognition to committee chairmen with respect to legislation previously blocked by the Rules Committee. Actually the new rules provide that when a bill stuck in the Rules Committee is called up for debate in the House on discharge days, "the Speaker shall recognize the member seeking recognition for that purpose as a question of the highest privilege." (Italics ours.) There is no room for chutzpah here.

In our opinion, Speaker Rayburn deserves a great deal of credit for his part in forcing through the far-reaching reform limiting the virtually absolute power of the Rules Committee—an undemocratic abuse that plagued the Eightieth Congress. To be sure, in his new post Mr. Rayburn will command considerable influence with committee chairmen, but this can scarcely be called dominance, especially since the rules provided specifically that chairmen must be recognized by the Speaker irrespective of his own views. As has always been the case, the Speaker will continue to wield broad powers of discipline over the House, but the direct power to stifle legislation is not one of them.

Smashing A Symbol

There was a drop of anger and an ocean of anguish in what Senators Vandenberg, Morse, and Smith had to say Wednesday about the change of party ratio in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. What had been a 7-to-6 division in the Eightieth Congress was altered to an 8-to-5 spread. And there was more than a little wind in Senator Barkley's explanation of why it was done. The steering committee's "right" to make this change cannot be questioned, but the decision to do it has most disturbing connotations for the bipartisan approach to foreign policy.

A party division as nearly equal as possible in the Foreign Relations Committee is not, of course, a cornerstone or even a necessity of bipartisanship. Conceivably a completely lopsided committee could function in bipartisan fashion. And conversely the most equal committee division guarantees nothing unless the Administration, too, is dedicated to real bipartisanship. But the 7-to-6 division of the Foreign Relations Committee in the last session was assuredly a symbol of bipartisanship. And the unnecessary departure from that symbol in the present Congress inevitably appears to have its own symbolism. The dismal implications of this change stand out all the more sharply because the steering committee at the same time altered the party ratio on the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee in exactly the opposite way.

Bipartisanship in foreign policy, a long-time goal in the United States, achieved its closest approximation to reality during the past two years under Republican control of Congress. We see no compelling reason why the new Democratic majority should have abandoned even the forms of that achievement. In our opinion, the Democratic steering committee has called a misplay, the consequences of which will be impossible to repair unless the decision is immediately reversed.

Polluted Potomac

The discomfiture of builders in Fairfax County over county sewage regulations is easy to understand. In an important part of the county, new home construction is hampered by an order forbidding any more connections to the present trunk sewer which runs into the Potomac just south of Alexandria. Yet the Fairfax Board of Supervisors had no other course if it is to observe the Virginia law as interpreted by the State Water Control Board. That law forbids any increase after July 1, 1946, in the volume of raw sewage dumped in the Potomac River.

Actually there are two separate sewage problems in Fairfax County. The first and most pressing is to afford protection to county residents, especially in the vicinity of Groveton, where lack of sewer facilities constitutes a health menace. Open pools from septic tanks are to be found, among other places, in a schoolyard! It is imperative that more sewers be built, and promptly, if the rapid home expansion of the county is to be accommodated.

Yet for the above reasons plans already under way for construction of a new sewer have been forestalled by the State Water Control Board. This ties into the second problem, which is common to many communities in the Potomac Basin. There simply are not adequate facilities to treat the amount of sewage drained into the river. Fairfax County has no treatment facilities at all; the present Government-constructed sewer empties raw matter into the river, albeit in midstream. The same pertains in Alexandria, although plans for a treatment plant are being readied. Arlington only partially treats its sewage, and even the District processing is far from adequate. In addition, of course, the Potomac is polluted by communities upstream and on tributaries. Below Washington the river is almost itself an open sewer.

The Potomac River Commission and the Northern Virginia Planning Commission both have been working in a general way to ameliorate the nuisance. Fairfax County, of course, has the most acute problem, and some help from the State will be required. If the Water Control Board cannot relax the law, then the Virginia Legislature will have to authorize temporary relief to take care of the immediate threat to health. Such relief could be contingent upon prompt construction by the county of a sewage treatment plant—efforts which already are projected in a bond issue referendum. Certainly there should be no relaxation in the broad plans to end the pollution of the Potomac—pollution which, in addition to being a disgrace, is a problem of potentially deadly seriousness.

Challenge To Industry

In his address to the State of the Union the President called for an immediate study of the adequacy or otherwise of production facilities for materials in critically short supply, notably steel. The purpose is, where necessary, to recommend authorization of Government loans for the expansion of production facilities or Government construction. This proposal has been denounced as a step toward nationalization of the steel industry, or, even more sweepingly, as a step toward socialism. It is nothing of the sort. More properly the step is a good to private enterprise to do its part in keeping the economy at a maximum level of employment in this period of cold war.

But, while only fearmongers could stigmatize the step as socialistic, the move does suggest that the Government might, under certain conditions, substitute its own judgment for that of private management as to the need for industrial expansion. However, it should be noted that the President does not ask for immediate authorization to lend public funds or use them directly to increase the production facilities of any industry. He asks only for a study to determine the adequacy of existing facilities for the production not merely of steel but of other commodities in "critically short supply." Only if such an investigation revealed the need for expansion would the Government be asked to come to the rescue. So far as steel is concerned, this newspaper concluded in a recent editorial on Increased Steel Output that the industry can present an excellent case for continuance of a hands-off governmental policy, in view of its high production record, its impressive expansion program, and the limitations on expansion imposed by shortages of steel making materials. Moreover, there is reason to believe that the pressure of consumer demands for steel is slackening.

Provided congressional investigations into the adequacy of production facilities are conducted by legislators eager to acquire all relevant information instead of to find support for preconceived views, such inquiries would serve a useful purpose. For the Government ought to know whether private industry is doing all that can or should be done at the moment, without assistance from the Government, to overcome supply deficiencies. If the United States were at war, no one would question the need for such a survey; nor would there be any objection to Government aid to bolster weak spots in the economy. In the present state of the world, industry must be prepared not only to satisfy the demands of a nation at peace; it must be geared to meet the needs of a defense program that is a product of the cold war in which the nation is now engaged.

Government financial aid may therefore, become necessary in the present uneasy state of world affairs to make up for specific deficiencies in basic materials and goods essential to war-making. Certainly if such deficiencies exist or are likely to develop, a factual inquiry of the kind asked for would lay the foundation for prompt and purposive Government action in case of need.

Code Security

The problem of adequate protection for American military and diplomatic codes, currently posed by Secretary Forrestal's letter to Congress, is pointed up by the case of the Chambers microfilms. If the inferences are correct, information was transmitted to Russia in the thirties which permitted the Russians to decipher the State Department code and read a wide variety of messages. Foolproof codes are vital to strategic decision in the cold war no less than in shooting war. And even the encoding machines now used extensively are subject to compromise, as can be attested to by anyone familiar with the scramble that took place in the Sixth Army Group in Alsace before a stolen machine was retrieved.

The trouble is that laws covering cryptographic information are extremely vague. Under the Espionage Act, for example, it is necessary to prove intent to injure the country in order to obtain conviction. And some of the most serious disclosures, of course, are unwitting or without malicious intent. On behalf of the armed forces, the State Department and the Central Intelligence Agency, Mr. Forrestal proposes a new law on unauthorized disclosure of information about codes and communications. This law, similar to a measure approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee in the last Congress, would punish the objective fact of disclosure regardless of the purpose.

Unauthorized disclosures of such information by military personnel already are covered by regulations. Hence the primary applicability of the proposed law would be against civilians, including former servicemen, who might reveal information that would enable other nations to read American codes. Navy Undersecretary Kenney has given the assurance that the measure would not restrict freedom of the press, since it would bear only on information obtained by "clandestine interception and crypt analysis." In other words, information previously transmitted by code could be printed perfectly legally provided that it did not compromise the code.

The bill wisely avoids any attempt to penalize newspapers for publication of information obtained from persons who themselves have violated the law—though in our opinion a specific guarantee ought to be written into the legislation. Admittedly complete security and complete freedom of the press are in conflict. But so far the good faith and voluntary restraint of the press have proved sufficient for the needs of security. Any attempt to legislate complete information security against all contingencies runs the dangers of undermining other rights no less important to society.

ECA Appraisal

The interim report of the OEEC (Organization for European Economic Recovery), which is the central agency of the ECA participating countries, emphasizes the need for revision of national recovery plans and the importance of proceeding immediately with the construction of a joint European recovery program to expedite progress.

The consensus of expert opinion is that production targets have probably been set too high to be achieved in the next 3½ years. Furthermore revised and more realistic estimates of earnings from exports of ECA countries lead to the conclusion that their exports, together with invisible earnings, are not likely to exceed 9.8 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1952-53, while estimates of national import programs submitted for that year amount to 12.8 billion dollars. However, it does not follow that the end of the Marshall Plan will find the participating countries struggling with a trade deficit of three billion dollars that will have to be met by further outpourings from dollar aid funds. Nor is it the purpose of the OEEC to make that point. It is rather to stress the fact that Europe must bestir itself to step up production at home and at the same time strive to close the gap between imports and exports within the time limit set by the Marshall Plan.

The greatest threat to success of the recovery program comes from overoptimism and unwillingness to face unpleasant facts. That danger the report attempts to combat by its sobering emphasis on the obstacles that have to be overcome to make western Europe self-sustaining. To solve the problem of dollar deficits, for instance, it suggests an attack on three fronts: (1) development within the aided countries of new sources of supply, (2) intensive efforts to increase earnings from exports, and (3) economy in imports from the rest of the world. Nor does the report hold out hopes that the standard of living can be raised to any great extent in the next few years. "A level of consumption in 1952-53," it says, "some 5 to 10 per cent above that of 1948, may be consistent with independence of external aid provided, that the participating countries can make... necessary advances in technical efficiency and the structural adjustments to replace the essential imports that may be proved difficult to buy outside." Moreover, the experts state that it is "not unlikely that western Europe may have to be content for some years ahead with a pattern of food consumption not dissimilar from that which exists today."

There is no suggestion of defeatism in this hard-hitting report. On the contrary, its aim is primarily to stress the magnitude of the undertaking that lies ahead of ECA countries and the sacrifices required of the people to reach the goal of continental self-sufficiency. Some countries still lack the courage to attend to the basic problem of fiscal housecleaning, the cooperative spirit is still fugitive, but, when all is said and done, there will be individual countries still in need of assistance when the ECA ceases to function.

Chinese Whispers

Even a subcontinent like China can be a whispering gallery, and it is not surprising that a mere shift of quarters at Tsingtao should have given rise to the report that the marines are about to quit China. This is now denied. However, the report doubtless gathered credence from the timorousness in the policy of protecting American lives and property in Shanghai. As in 1927, the marines are kept cooped up on boats in the anchorage, though they were allowed to come ashore and take up protective positions in 1927 when they got a trifle restive. The situation nowadays is, of course, different, for no longer do the great powers have a share in the governance of modern Shanghai. But the principle is the same—the 150-year-old principle, that is, that American lives and American property are protectable against the beserk extravagances of mob forces let loose during a transition period in orderly government. It is strange that the Administration was brave as a lion in backing with arms a dying regime in Nanking, thereby risking a tremendous diplomatic defeat, and meek as a lamb when Americans were endangered—so meek as precipitately to tell our nationals to send home their personal property, if not their womenfolk.

Subversive Probes

The recent clamor against the Un-American Activities Committee of the House seems to me to be poorly timed. We have had this committee with us for several administrations, under both Republican and Democratic leadership, and I cannot see that its performance at the present time is any worse than it was under Martin Dies.

The Dies Committee tossed the label "Communist" at the head of every prominent person in the United States whose political views were to the left of those held by the publisher of the Chicago Tribune; and this demagoguery was accompanied by witness bullying and public seeking, and all the other unfair practices now complained of, to a higher degree than has ever been present under the Republicans. Moreover, this was at a time when communism was less a threat to the United States than it is today, while fascism, sponsored by German agents and German money, was much more so.

Today the Silver Shirts, the Father Coughlins and their kind are only memories; the Ku Klux Klan is fighting a losing battle. On the other hand, it is highly probable that we are in serious danger from Communists, in foreign armies as well as inside the U. S. A. in labor unions and even inside the Government.

In every respect communism has taken the place for us that Hitlerism occupied in the 30s. Meanwhile the Thomas Committee has done what the Dies Committee did not do—exposed the activities of genuine Communists, instead of helpless liberals and university professors.

How is it, then, that a Democratic Congress year after year appropriated ever larger and larger sums for the meaningless activities of the Dies Committee; and only now it is proposed that the lackadaisical Justice Department take over the investigating function? A. B. MASON, Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Costa Rica's Case

The representative of Nicaragua in the Organization of American States, in his letter which appeared on January 2, describes as false the charges leveled by Costa Rica against his government as a result of the December 10 invasion and insists that his government has always given its support to measures tending toward peace and understanding among nations.

There is a danger that the American people will be led into misjudging the seriousness of the situation created by the violation of Costa Rican territory and the proven effectiveness of the Organization of American States in acting promptly to impede what might have become a conflagration of large proportions.

The text of the Costa Rican communication of December 11 to the president of the council charges that an army, openly equipped and trained in Nicaragua, had invaded the country. These charges are entirely borne out in Article II of the resolution of the council of December 24 which finds that the government of Nicaragua could and should have prevented the invading army from being equipped and trained within its borders and from crossing the frontier into Costa Rica.

If the Nicaraguan government, with a long record of unilateral interventions in Costa Rica, abstains from further unlawful measures, it will be because the Organization of American States has shown its readiness to act quickly against aggression. This is important and the historical result of the work of the council must not be obscured by manifestations of the peaceful intentions of a dictator government.

German Mind

Gretchen Cunningham's letter in your issue of January 1 is an amazing example of the German mind. She states that the Germans are now saying openly that "the Americans have come to teach us democracy, and they are greater dictators than Hitler, and not as smart."

The Berliners are not starving—the airlift has taken care of that; nor are they enslaved, beaten, experimented upon by callous doctors, murdered by slow torture, or exterminated by the tens of thousands in huge crematoriums after unspeakable horrors.

America needs no apologists. Her humanity, unselfish sympathy for the oppressed and unexampled generosity are too well known. The glory of Hitler the conqueror may be enshrined in the German mind, but in the hearts of the civilized peoples of the world he lives in eternal infamy. R. S. C. Washington.

Independent Symphony

A letter from "Orpheus" published on January 2 accuses officials of the National Symphony Orchestra of being smug and of summarily rejecting a merger proposal with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra. I know the officials in question have given the proposal every consideration.

"Orpheus" seems to desire quality and merger. Why would he not suggest that the National Symphony Orchestra merge with the Philadelphia or Boston or the New York Philharmonic Orchestras? Such an amalgamation is quite contrary to the ideas of the founder of the National Symphony, Dr. H. A. S. Kindler, and to the ideas of the orchestra supporters who have constantly striven to form here an orchestra representative of the culture of the Nation's Capital and which would tour in its name.

Has "Orpheus" considered the mechanics of an amalgamation? Which musicians' union local would control? Who would play in this new orchestra? If on a quota basis, should outstandingly good men from either city be excluded because that city's quota had been filled? Where should it rehearse? Who would decide who was to conduct?

At the moment, the Baltimore Orchestra is in financial difficulties despite a large municipal contribution which is earmarked for student concerts and which somewhat controls seat prices at other concerts. A member of the Baltimore group states (not verbatim), "We have the conductor and you (Washington) have the money."

If "Orpheus" must have musical cooperation, may I point out that unofficially there exists such cooperation between Washington and Baltimore. Washington has no conservatory of music and Baltimore has an excellent one. Many students from Washington attend Baltimore's fine Peabody Conservatory. Many Baltimoreans attend the nine concerts of the National Symphony Orchestra in Baltimore.

Civil Service

In his letter of December 31, President Harry B. Mitchell of the United States Civil Service Commission condemned the Al-sop column for its "general and unfounded criticism" of the civil service system. To me, Mr. Mitchell's reply seemed equally general.

Professional and scientific personnel, of whom he speaks at some length, are rated by civil service largely on the basis of the ubiquitous Form 57. What evidence does civil service have that its ratings are valid? Since candidates for civil service positions are supposed to tell only the truth about themselves on the Form 57, why cannot civil service's criteria for rating it be published? Knowledge of its methods, if they are good, should increase confidence in the system.

FRANCES PARTRIDGE, Washington.

I take my hat off to Harry B. Mitchell for his wonderful defense of civil service. There is no better way to begin the new year of 1949 than by steadfastly upholding principles which we know are correct.

Let us each recognize the good work which is being done in our Federal Government and continue to defy the calumnious remarks which certain unqualified observers habitually throw at competent and ambitious people who work and make honest livings in the Federal Government.

BASIL R. BARNETT, Washington.

Whether he has grown up to his job or not, subject of controversy. His critics are still as the confused, unhappy man who in the months following President Roosevelt's death protested over and over that he had not sought the office and did not want it.

But while he is not the "new Truman" that some proclaim, neither is he the same President who was the uneasy heir of F. D. R. Change can mean growth, or the individual can grow in stature, in character, without superficial outward change. Certainly, Truman today has need of all the strength and understanding he can muster.

The Congress shows every sign of cooperating with the President. In the present mood and with some of the old traffic blocks out of the way, Truman is likely to get most of his program adopted and within a decade of six months.

While this will spell success of a sort, there are many factors beyond the power of Congress and the President. The Nation's economy seems to be poised on the edge of some sort of deflationary movement. If Truman is lucky, and he has had astonishing good luck in the past, it will be merely a healthy corrective to inflation.

Organized labor can upset the applecart by unrestricted strikes after the Taft-Hartley Act is repealed. And, of course, in the foreign scene the chances of a disaster are still frightening.

But regardless of what the future holds, nothing can rob the President of this moment. He is front and center on the world stage.

"Icecapade"

How heartily I agree with your editorial of December 29 entitled "Icecapade." As the wife of one of the Marine helicopter pilots who left his home, fire, and children on Christmas Eve to go to the rescue of the stranded alms, I also ask why did the Air Force wait so long to ask for assistance? There was no thought in the minds of those men when they left of becoming heroes—only the desire to serve in whatever capacity they could.

The old adage of "if at first you don't succeed, try and try again" is certainly applicable in this case. My congratulations to the Air Force for finally succeeding after so many attempts had failed—and to the Navy and Marine Corps for their "cold rush" of '48.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

The President's Hour

THIS IS Harry Truman's hour. The headlines say "Truman Program" and "Truman Forces." On January 20 he will take the oath of office as President in his own right.

The carpenters and painters are finishing the big rostrum in front of the Capitol. The Republicans in Congress voted the money and planned that elaborate structure with its impressive columns. They thought they would occupy it with their own President.

But instead it is the man from Missouri who is charting the course for the next four years. He will repeat after his friend, Fred Vinson, whom he named Chief Justice of the United States, the impressive oath of the Presidency.

To one who has known him and watched him since he first came to Washington 14 years ago, the remarkable thing is not how much he has changed, but how little. The modest freshman Senator who sat in the back row of the Senate and in his good-humored way made friends with other freshmen is the same Harry Truman.

His chief personal qualities then, as now, are loyalty, kindness and a persistence that can be plain, old-fashioned stubbornness. He is doggedly and unfailingly loyal to old friends and he hates to hurt anyone. Loyalty and charity sometimes overwhelm the stern necessities of the Presidency.

TRUMAN'S enemies and critics—and they are numerous and powerful—prefer to discuss him as an accident of bossed politics. That was their line, at any rate, before November 2. His championship of the sweeping reforms he is asking of Congress they put down to mere vote-getting.

That is both an oversimplification and an injustice. Certainly, Truman understands the common equation of practical politics. He knows that to win elections you must give the people what they want or a reasonable approximation of it.

But his championship of the Truman program—the extension of the Roosevelt New Deal—goes deeper than that. While he may not have a complete understanding or even a complete conviction on complicated matters, such as public housing and medical care, he does have a strong sense of the urgency of change long overdue in terms of the popular will and the broad currents of history.

In other words, he understands, as so many cleverer men do not, that you cannot bar the door to social change. To attempt to do so in a democracy is to court the destruction of the democratic process itself.

There enters into this argument the fact of his extraordinary modesty. During the campaign he spoke extemporaneously at New Haven, Conn., about Yale University and the scholars who were studying and learning so much at that great university. Then he said, almost wistfully, that he had never had a chance to learn at a university.

WHETHER he has grown up to his job or not, subject of controversy. His critics are still as the confused, unhappy man who in the months following President Roosevelt's death protested over and over that he had not sought the office and did not want it.

But while he is not the "new Truman" that some proclaim, neither is he the same President who was the uneasy heir of F. D. R. Change can mean growth, or the individual can grow in stature, in character, without superficial outward change. Certainly, Truman today has need of all the strength and understanding he can muster.

Morality's Decline

A Communication

A DISTINGUISHED journalist said to me the other day that he was much disturbed over the decline of international morality. I think there is something that can be done about it and that something is to kill the thing called nationalism.

Personal morality, based upon the innate good will of mankind, is high. It is high in our own country which we can observe and appraise at first-hand, day by day. Personal morality is reportedly high in those other nations of the world which we observe and appraise. Even in those areas in which observation and reporting are limited, the people are known to be good and kind; personal good will—therefore personal morality—is high.

Good will, the basis of morality, carries with it the willingness to make sacrifices. The act of that citizen who gave the skin of his body to help save the little boy of his neighbor, was an act of supreme good will, hence a demonstration of the highest personal morality. The act of that group of inspection station personnel who clothed and shod some neighborhood children and fed their families at Christmas time, was an expression of good will and carried with it the element of sacrifice. The act of that Japanese collector of paintings who gave to the writer his finest painting, "as the price he was glad to pay for the folly of his government," was an act of great good will.

PERSONAL morality, translated into national terms, has made national morality high in most areas—in all areas, as a matter of fact, where personal morality is permitted to express itself at the national level. The recent American presidential elections, although not altogether free from the low-level, morose campaign exaggerations practiced at most times in our past, were about the best expression of national good will—national morality—which we have had in our history.

The victory of the President was a triumph of personal good will, personal morality, and this is not to be mistaken for any reflection upon the equally notable good will and personal morality of his adversary. The difference was, basically, that more men and women reacted to the spontaneous good will of the lone warrior than were influenced by the perhaps colder morality of the better supported and more amply supplied opponent. Here we have personal good will translated into sympathetic national good will.

Unfortunately, between the everyday, human level of personal morality and the less tangible level of national morality, there is a sort of "twilight zone" of dubious morality which we might call that of "Publicity Morality." The level in that twilight zone is extremely low.

Probably the most extreme expression of this unbelievably low level of morality was the recent statement to the effect that, "We will give out their names as they jump out of their windows." The purpose, and the whole purpose, of that most immoral statement was merely to make the headlines.

Another extreme expression of the low level of morality in the twilight zone is the continuous stream of invective and deliberate falsehood put out by the Soviet propaganda machine. Its purpose, and its whole purpose, is to make the headlines, particularly those in areas outside the Soviet sphere, and thus lower personal morality in those areas by sowing doubt and distrust of their own national morality.

IT IS encouraging to read, from time to time, the opening paragraphs of the Charter of the United Nations.

Here is the perfect expression of international morality, the combined effort of men of good will, empowered to exert that good will which is innate in all men, on behalf of the sovereign nations which they had been selected to represent. But alas! What has been accomplished toward the implementation of that expression of international morality? On paper perhaps not much; in the hearts of men, of good will, a very great deal; hidden perhaps, but there none-the-less.

An earnest effort, though almost never an unanimous one, has been made, is being made, and will continue to be made to carry out the quasi-divine intent of the Charter. But the effort demands constantly the unselfish support of all men of good will, and all nations as well. It demands above all the sacrifice of the illusory "advantages" of nationalism. One of our handful of great men, probably Henry L. Stimson, has said, "nationalism represents a very limited morality. It seeks to set up a series of unrelated islands in a vast sea of uncertainty, doubt, and distrust. Uncertainty and doubt mean fear; distrust is always inspired by selfishness (another version of fear). Neither has any part in the combined efforts to accomplish the high aims of the Charter of the U. N."

In a way, by analogy, our three military services are daily guilty of the crime of "nationalism." Each individual representative of any one of the services, taken alone, is a loyal devoted man of good will with respect to the national security and, carrying it further, with respect to that international security which is pronounced "peace." And yet, when two or more of such men from any one service get together and, above all, when they get their "line" laid down by superior authority, they immediately become "service conscious"—"nationalistic"—actually—and all good will goes out the window as interservice jealousy stalks in at the door. The national security, unfortunately, is only too often in that sorry situation.

LIKEWISE, it is safe to suppose that each individual representative of any nation—yes, even the vitriolic Mr. Vishinsky—is a loyal, devoted man of the greatest good will with respect to that international security which is called "peace." And yet, when two or more Messrs. Vishinsky get together, with perhaps vague instructions from "back home," on a project requiring combined action with other nations, these two or more individuals immediately become national-conscious and their innate good will is immediately camouflaged within a tough rhinoceros hide of nationalism.

Nations, just as the men who represent them, can "practice tolerance and live together as good neighbors," in that sweet peace which is always waiting for men of good will. But nations, to thus fulfill their appointed high destinies as digits in the sum of international morality, must first forget and destroy their illusions of nationalism. Nations should not hide the light of the innate good will of their citizens under the bushel of nationalistic selfishness. There is an old Chinese proverb which reminds us that: "Poor iron may glitter in the light while pure gold hidden under a basket cannot shine out clearly."

Two damage suits charging illegal racial segregation in National Airport dining rooms were continued until February 28 yesterday in Alexandria Federal Court. The continuance was asked after one of the plaintiffs requested new counsel.

The Washington law firm of Houston, Houston, Hastings & Waddy had brought identical suits on behalf of Mrs. Helen Nash, 1330 13th st. nw., and Miss Lilly Cunningham of New York.

Charles Houston, a member of the firm, told the court yesterday that since his firm had indicated to the Government that the cases might be dropped if segregation was banned at the airport, his clients might now desire new counsel. Segregation was stopped at the airport Tuesday.

Mrs. Nash, who is pressing her $48,000 suit against Eastern Airlines, the Civil Aeronautics Administrator and Air Terminal Services, Inc., told the court that she did want to change lawyers.

Miss Cunningham was not in court.

A third damage suit brought by Mrs. Sadie Alexandria of Philadelphia, was dismissed at her request.

Matter Of Fact

The Social Welfare State

FOR THOSE who enjoy pomp and circumstance, the outward trappings of the American Government are singularly disappointing. The address on the State-of-the-Union is one of the world's more ancient surviving political ceremonies. Yet, as the thirty-second President of the United States arrived to address the Eighty-first Congress of the United States, no maces were brandished, no tradition-hallowed rites were performed.

Everybody simply stood up and clapped, as the President walked in with Vice President Alben Barkley at his side. Truman was nattily dressed as ever, his cheeks a ruddy, healthy pink, and he grinned genially at old congressional friends as the congressional floor leaders escorted him down the center aisle, beneath the undercarriage steel girders which support the House structure.

On his way to the rostrum, he passed the members of his Cabinet—Defense Secretary James Forrestal, his pugna face expressionless; Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett, substituting for the ailing George Marshall; old cronies John Snyder, looking owlish, and the rest. It was hard to believe that these remarkably unremarkable-looking men—the President, the congressional leaders, the Cabinet members—between them disposed of more power than any other group of men in the world. It was hard to believe that this was a moment of high drama. Yet, in a sense, it was.

NOT THAT the President's speech sounded dramatic. His delivery was a trifle more assured than formerly, a trifle less oddly parenthetical. But the President is incapable of making a speech dramatically. The real drama lay simply in this, that the President's speech underscored a fact which even November 2 failed entirely to force home—the fact that the United States, in a time of booming prosperity, has taken a sudden, wholly unanticipated, and decisive turn to the left.

For one thing is clear. There were kind words, undoubtedly sincerely meant, about business and free enterprise. But the President's recommendations to Congress were well to the left of any recommendations which have ever been made to that body by any President, including Truman's predecessor.

The address on the State-of-the-Union was, indeed, a blueprint for a peculiarly American version of what in Europe would probably be called "social democracy"—Justice William Douglas has dubbed it the "social welfare state." The basic premise behind every word the President spoke was simply that in every field affecting the public welfare, from health and housing and prices to the production of steel, the state must assume the ultimate responsibility.

In an ideological sense, the President ventured further to the left in his steel proposal than in regard to any other issue. He asked that the Government be given the power, in certain circumstances, to build, operate and own steel plants. Peacetime Government ownership and operation of a part of a basic industry does have perfectly genuine socialist overtones.

THERE IS a further significance in the fact that the steel proposal was included in the Truman program, together with a demand for standby price control and allocation authority. As reported previously in this space, there has been a sharp division within the Administration on both issues. It seemed virtually certain that the President, since he was already deeply committed on this point, would ask for standby price control and allocation powers. But it was thought that the conservatives among his advisers still

Video Stations To Mark Opening Of Link to West

New York, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—A major step in television will be taken Tuesday night when Eastern and Midwestern television stations will be linked in a network for the first time by coaxial cable.

A special Tuesday night program, one hour and a half long, will feature speeches by Government and industry and variety entertainment by the NBC, CBS, ABS and Dumont television stations.

At present, television networks have operated separately in the East, the Midwest and on the West Coast. The coaxial cable will link the first two sections. It is hoped a national chain will be in operation by 1950, including the West Coast.

The new link is between Philadelphia and Cleveland. Thirty or more stations will carry the program.

Maryland Police To Learn to Catch Flying Violators

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Maryland police are going to be instructed to look up for law breakers.

A series of seminars to familiarize police with flying regulations will start Monday. The meetings will be sponsored by the State Aviation Commission, Civil Aeronautics Administration and the State police.

The campaign to promote flying safety in Maryland will stress the three most frequent violations, "buzz" flying, acrobatic flight and flight below minimum altitudes.

The seminars will be given for police in Baltimore, Anne Arundel, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties and in Frederick, Hagerstown, Cumberland, Eastern, Cambridge, Salisbury and Annapolis. Sheriffs, county prosecutors and magistrates also are welcome.

Costa Rica Rebels Active

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 6 (U.P.).—Rebels led by former President Rafael Calderon Guardia continue active in the Costa Rican mountains, the newspaper La Prensa said today.

had sufficient strength to prevent the inclusion of the steel proposal in his program.

The fact that the President went the whole way with them, not only on steel but on every issue, proves conclusively that the liberals (or call them what you will—the left wingers, the New Dealers, the labor-minded) are now very firmly in the Administration driver's seat. No doubt Snyder and those who think like him will remain in the Administration. But the real power to formulate Administration domestic policy will rest with such liberals as Counsel Clark Clifford, Economic Adviser Leon Keyserling, Assistant Interior Secretary C. Girard Davidson (for whom the steel proposal is a personal victory), Security Administrator Oscar Ewing, and others of like mind.

It remains to be seen how far the Eighty-first Congress will go in translating the Truman program into law. It is still, of course, really too early to guess—the Congress has not yet had time to shake down. But according to experienced observers on Capitol Hill, it begins to appear that the President should get about two-thirds or three-quarters of his program—which is a better score than any President has made on domestic policy since 1936. Thus the chances are that in the near future the country will have a chance to sample at least a watered-down version of the "social welfare state." It should prove an interesting experience.

Bill Proposes Mobilizing World Cancer Experts

Congress received yesterday a proposal for mobilizing world experts on cancer in an effort to wipe out the disease.

A bill introduced by Representative Douglass (D., Calif.), would authorize and request the President to call foreign experts to this country. They would pool their knowledge and work with American specialists in a "supreme endeavor" to find ways of curing and preventing the disease.

Other bills introduced during the day:

Representative McDonough (D., Calif.): Admit Hawaii to the Union.

Representative Pace (D., Ga.): Deny admittance to all immigrants while the number of unemployed in the United States is 100 or more.

Representative Morrison (D.,

African 'King' Tells Bride of Tribal Ban

London, Jan. 6 (P)—"King" Seretse Khama flew in from South Africa today to give his blonde English bride the bad news first-hand: the Bantustans ban white queens.

What now? The 27-year-old chief just gave airport reporters a toothy grin when asked whether he'll give up his throne for the woman he loves. His wife laughed gaily.

"They weren't talking," Khama, the bantustans' chief-elect, was called home when his people heard of his marriage last October to Ruth Williams, pretty 24-year-old London typist.

The tribe, 100,000 race-proud bantustans said it might scatter through South Africa's Bechuanaland rather than permit the pollution of the royal line with white blood.

Ruth was waiting at the airport when Khama arrived. Along with two friends they drove to her small apartment—up four floors in an unpretentious building across St. James's Park from Buckingham Palace where another King faced a somewhat similar decision 12 years ago.

The door remained closed to reporters. "Go away," Ruth said as they knocked. "We don't want to talk," Seretse chimed in.

"We want privacy," she said. "Come back tomorrow," he said. Later Khama gave out this information: "I am going to resume my law studies at Oxford as soon as possible."

Loses Girl, 3 Mother, 23, Faces Count Of Kidnaping

Los Angeles, Jan. 6 (P)—Vickie Jeanne Snyder, a pretty 3-year-old who has a delayed Christmas party waiting for her in Harrisburg, Pa., today was ordered given to her grandfather for return to that State.

Superior Judge A. A. Scott said he had no alternative but to take Vickie from her mother, Mrs. Jeannie Morgan Bragel, 23, who faces a kidnaping charge in Pennsylvania, and give the girl to the paternal grandfather, Harry Snyder, Harrisburg beauty parlor operator.

The little girl cried and screamed as she was taken from her mother's arms.

Snyder said the mother did not return with Vickie after taking her from his home for Christmas shopping.

The Bragel's attorney attacked legality of the adoption proceedings by which the grandfather obtained custody of Vickie.

Times-Herald Made
$59,967 in November
Operation of the Washington Times-Herald last November showed a profit of $59,967, according to a monthly financial statement filed in District Court yesterday. The statement was submitted by the Riggs National Bank, the court-appointed collector of the estate of the late Eleanor M. Patterson.

The proprietorship account showed a balance of $2,044,405 on October 31, 1948, and on November 30, 1948, it stood at $2,104,372.

The operator will push the 10 like this: First 505, which is the number of the State of New Mexico; then 431, the number of a central office in that State; then 4820, which is a home phone.

Arson Probed
Barton School

A second fire in as many days broke out yesterday in the Clara Barton Elementary School, 7425 MacArthur blvd. On both occasions more than 400 pupils fled outside in an orderly fire drill.

Principal William Evans told police he believed the fires, in separate closets on the first floor, were deliberately ignited. Police and school officials were investigating last night.

When the fire broke out Wednesday, children had no time to get their hats and coats. Because they stood in the pouring rain while Glen Echo and Cabin John firemen extinguished the blaze, school was let out.

Officer Leo Stevens, who investigated both fires, said a book of paper matches was found in the closet that burned Wednesday. He added that a school janitor admitted he might have dropped them himself.

Stevens joined with Evans in expressing the opinion that both fires were started purposely.

Push Buttons
To Speed Long Distance Calls

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor
New York, Jan. 6.—A new, push-button system to make long distance phone calls twice as fast as before was announced today by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Average time for long distance calls has been two minutes. With push buttons it drops to one minute.

The push buttons are not for home phones, but will be used by long distance girls to replace dials.

Ten per cent of the Nation's phones already are on the long distance buttons. They are the 300 cities and towns around and connected with New York, Chicago and Philadelphia.

The 10 buttons represent 10 numbers, three more than present dial systems of metropolitan areas.

The operator will push the 10 like this: First 505, which is the number of the State of New Mexico; then 431, the number of a central office in that State; then 4820, which is a home phone.

Group Plans Battle
On Tax Exemptions

The Federation of Businessmen's Associations yesterday announced its opposition to plans to reduce exemptions in the proposed District personal income and unincorporated business taxes.

Dr. Benjamin Striner, 7800 Orchard st. n.w., federation head, said his organization would "fight to the last" against the proposed taxes.

The District Commissioners met this morning to discuss plans to reduce the personal income tax exemption from $8000 to $5000 and the unincorporated business tax exemption from $10,000 to $5000.

"We feel we are being sold down the river," Striner said. "Originally, we were told that the sales tax would replace both personal income and unincorporated business taxes. Now we are scared we're going to get both."

Opposition by the federation, which represents 24 separate businessmen's associations, came after discussions between Striner and the fiscal relations committee. The federation has opposed the proposals on separate occasions during 1948.

Work Backlog Retards
Traffic Light Requests

George E. Keneipp, director of vehicles and traffic, last night told the Connecticut Avenue Citizens Association that the backlog of work which piled up during the war still prevents immediate installation of needed traffic lights.

Keneipp's reply was in answer to requests for several new lights made at the group's meeting at All Souls Memorial Church, Connecticut ave. and Woodley pl. n.w. Particular emphasis was made on the request for improved pedestrian control at Connecticut ave. and Woodley rd., where, it was said, pedestrians often become stranded in the intersection by the changing lights. The traffic director said this work is on his department's schedule.

THE PRINCE GEORGES
Bill to Elect
School Board
To Be Asked

The Prince Georges County Civics Federation will ask the county's delegation to the Maryland General Assembly to introduce legislation for an elected school board.

This action was taken last night at a meeting at the County Service Building, Hyattsville, following reading of a proposed bill by Daniel M. Greene, chairman of the group's legislative committee.

The bill would provide for the election at the 1950 general election of a five-man board to replace the present three-member appointed board.

Walter F. Mulligan of Berwyn, veteran president of the group, was reelected for his thirteenth consecutive term as all federation officers were continued in office.

Others renamed were: A. F. Bird Temple Hills, first vice president; George Bowen, District Heights, second vice president; Fred W. Gast, Chevy Chase, treasurer; Mrs. Genevieve Stewart, Riverdale Heights, recording secretary; and Richard Bauer, Rogers Heights and Greene, Avondale, members of the executive board.

In other business the group proposed legislation to license pinball machines and permit cash payoffs and to increase the State incentive fund for schools construction to 10 million dollars.

One of the amazing things about the investigation, he said, was that nobody in Washington tried to conceal anything. "They seemed aware," he explained, "that something drastic had to be instituted. From this and other cases, we are convinced that tremendous progress has been made in the United States on interracial problems. There has taken place in the heart of America a kind of revolution, an awakening to our ideals."

While the report did not commit the national committee to any specific future action, Dr. Shuster said that it was probable that a special committee will be formed to attempt to achieve remedial action through the activities of existing organizations.

"It is bound to make a tremendous impact upon the country. Not everything we hope for is going to happen in one day, however. You may be sure the people in Washington don't want their city to be reflected upon in this way."

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Klutts

Travel Allowance Top Of $10 Daily Approved By Administration

EXPENSES: The Administration has given its approval to another important Federal worker project—a travel allowance up to $10 a day for employees ordered out on official business.

A maximum of $6 a day for expenses is now given an employee who travels. In these days of inflation, this forces employees and officials alike to dig down into their own pockets to help Uncle Sam conduct his business, a most unjustifiable situation.

As a result, scores of employees have refused to travel when requested to for the simple reason that they can't afford it. It's routine for a trip to cost an employee a hundred or so dollars.

The Civil Service Commission will recommend that Congress increase the allowance from $6 to $10 in its annual report. The Air Force, however, will carry the ball on the worthy project before congressional committees. In his annual report, Defense Secretary Forrestal revealed that the Budget Bureau had given A. F. the check. His report did not say how much of an increase would be proposed.

SLASH? It's supposed to be a secret, but the Civil Service Commission is making plans for possible lay-offs in its classification and service records divisions. This is the story:

The Budget Bureau is reported to have cut the commission's proposed budget by nearly one million dollars. It directed that the cut be applied mainly to classification and to service records in a lesser degree. But how much less these divisions would have for the 1950 fiscal year is undetermined and won't be known until the budget is made public next week. The $330 pay raise complicates the picture.

DEAN R. BRIMHALL, director of research at Civil Aeronautics, is being supported by VIP (very important people) to succeed John R. Allison as Assistant Commerce Secretary for Air. Incidentally, it's a good bet that the job will be enlarged after Allison leaves to include more than air—a possible tip-off that it won't go to an airman.

NEW DEAL—It's in the works for Foreign Service personnel, both regulars and reservists. GARRETT ACKERMAN is out as chief of Foreign Service personnel. His GOP sponsor is no longer a power in Capitol Hill for the department to contend with. In his place on an acting basis is DONALD SMITH, who is regarded as a more liberal and open-minded regular.

The shift is aimed toward giving reservists a better break in the foreign service. No matter who was to blame, it's a fact that many appointments of expert reservists have been held up in the foreign service office. Most of the breaks were given the regulars.

MARITIME: A report by retiring Chairman Aiken of the Senate Expenditures Committee will recommend a thoroughgoing reorganization of this independent agency. The suggestions will be similar to those which will be made by the Hoover Commission and they are:

1. That the operations of the commission be placed under a single administrator and be transferred to the Commerce Department;
2. That the commission be converted to a "staff" agency, with carriers, and finally, 3. That in time of war the agency be transferred automatically to the National Defense Agency.

The report concludes that it's surprising that Maritime has operated as well as it has under its maze of complicated and conflicting laws and regulations. It urges the abolition of responsibilities that are "impossible to administer."

Father Heyden to Talk On Eclipse of May 8-9

The Rev. Francis J. Heyden, S.J., director of the Georgetown University Astronomical Observatory, will deliver the sixth lecture of the National Geographic Society winter series tonight at 8:15 o'clock in Constitution Hall, 18th and D sts. NW.

Father Heyden, leader of the China unit of the society's 1948 eclipse expedition, will describe observations of seven teams which viewed the May 8-9 eclipse at seven stations from Burma to the Aleutians.

Hall Given 18 Years in Slaying of Policeman

Daughter Acquitted On Murder Charge In Death of Prince Georges Officer

Thomas Hall, giant 54-year-old laborer, was convicted yesterday of second-degree murder and sentenced to 18 years in the Maryland Penitentiary for the fatal shooting last June 12 of Prince Georges County Police Sgt. Charles F. Caldwell.

Hall's daughter, Janie Leeta Hall, 20, also charged with murder, but slayed for trial in another jurisdiction, was acquitted after her attorneys in a surprise move, gained the court's permission to enter a not guilty plea on the basis of the evidence given in her father's trial.

Both verdicts were handed down by Associate Judge Charles C. Marbury, who with Chief Judge William M. Loker and Associate Judge John B. Gray, Jr., deliberated only two hours after recessing the trial at noon upon summation of the case by prosecution and defense.

The tribunal heard the case without a jury in Prince Georges County Court at Upper Marlboro. Calls Him "Fortunate"

In reading the verdict, Judge Marbury told Hall that the "atrocious crime you have committed" narrowly missed being first degree murder, which may carry the death penalty.

"The consequence of what you have done will live long after you have expired," Judge Marbury said.

"You are indeed fortunate," the jurist said, "you do not stand now before the court to be sentenced for murder in the first degree."

The 18-year sentence is the maximum permitted for conviction of second-degree murder under the Maryland code.

"The court has been unable to find any mitigation in this case which would justify anything less than the maximum sentence," the judge declared.

Hall, a 6-foot, 5-inch stone yard worker, nodded assent to the jurist's words as he stood before the bench, nervously shifting his feet and shifting his weight from one foot to another.

Officer Caldwell was killed, and his fellow officer, Pvt. Wallace L. Baker, wounded, when the officers went to Hall's house, 3312 Maple rd., Deanwood Park, Md., to investigate a report of a knife fight.

Hall's court-appointed defense counsel, J. Frank Lillard, Jr., and Carlisle Lancaster, had argued that the laborer, after being black-jacked by police, acted in self defense when he grabbed Caldwell's gun from his holster and fired three shots.

"He was in fear of his life," Lillard argued in summation yesterday.

The tribunal's verdict was that Hall, "without provocation or justification" resisted the officers as they were about to take his daughter to the police station on the knife incident.

Fired Three Times
The jurist said the evidence clearly indicated the defendant took the revolver from Caldwell and fired three times at the policeman's prone body.

Judge Marbury said the officers had done nothing to provoke Hall's attack.

"We had no difficulty in finding the crime was murder," the judge said. However, he added, the defendant had been unable to find proof the murder was "willful, deliberate and premeditated," which is necessary to a first-degree murder conviction.

In clearing Janie Hall of the murder charge, the court found that while she had resisted the officers, she had not participated in the shooting or brought about her father's deed. She must stand trial, however, on assault charges.

Pilot's Body Removed From Plane Wreckage...

AIRMAN'S END—As the morning sun breaks through the trees, soldiers from Andrews Air Base carry the blanketed body of Stuart Morrill, pilot of Teaneck, N. J., away from the wreckage of the DC-3 plane in which he crashed yesterday near Brandywine, Md. The copilot was also killed in the crash. They were flying a shipment of flowers from Florida destined for Boston.

2 Die in Md. As Result of Auto Crashes

One Victim Was GWU Student Hurt on Way To Basketball Game

Two persons, one a student at George Washington University, died yesterday from injuries suffered in traffic accidents in near-by Maryland.

George Kruger, 22, of 2718 Woodley pl., the college student, died at 8:15 p. m. at Baltimore City Hospital. He was one of six GWU men hurt on the Philadelphia rd. near Joppa, Md., when their car collided with a trailer truck on Tuesday.

They were en route to the GWU basketball game in New York City. Lawrence E. Bay, 53, a Baltimore baking company employee, died at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, Md. He was injured yesterday when the panel truck he was driving collided with a Federal Government automobile driven by William S. Ridenour, 39, also of Baltimore, 2 miles south of Laurel Md., on Route 1.

Chest Crushed
Bay never regained consciousness, hospital authorities said. He suffered a crushed chest, several broken ribs and a head injury. Ridenour, treated for minor injuries at Leland Memorial Hospital, and released, was charged with reckless driving and posted $51,700 collateral. He will be booked on a technical charge of manslaughter today, police said.

In Washington, three persons, one a secretary to a Municipal Court judge, were injured at 1:53 a. m. yesterday in a collision at Third st. and Constitution ave. NW. Two Taken to Hospital

Mrs. Helen Klonan, 40, of 223 Orange st. SE, secretary to Judge Walter J. Casey, and Kenneth B. Cross, 38, of Charlotte, N. C., driver of the car in which she was riding, were taken to Emergency Hospital, where they were admitted for treatment of serious head injuries. Their condition yesterday was reported "fair."

Rosa Graves, 32, of 4801 B st. SE, a passenger in the car driven by Hettie Hanson, 54, of 1018 Fourth st. NW, was also taken to Emergency Hospital. She was treated for contusions and bruises to the legs and released.

Streetcar Operator Cleared in Fatality

A coroner's jury in Washington yesterday declared accidental the death of Miles Jesse, 56, of 431 6th st. SW, who died of injuries suffered late Monday when struck by a streetcar at 18th st. and New York ave. NW.

Spurgeon Swinson, 31, of 1941 4th st. NE, operator of the trolley, was freed by the jury.

Swinson, in a statement read by Police Sgt. Harold F. Gipe of the Accident Investigation Unit, said that Jesse ran in front of the car as it entered the intersection.

Jesse, a greengrocer for the Department of Agriculture, suffered a fractured skull and pelvis and a ruptured liver.

Public Library Officials Are Congratulated

District Commissioners yesterday congratulated Public Library officials on the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the local library and issued a proclamation urging residents to visit and use the library facilities.

An engraved copy of the proclamation was presented to Mrs. Philip S. Smith, vice president, District Board of Library Trustees. Librarian Harry N. Peterson and Assistant Librarian Ralph L. Thompson.

Two Perish as Cargo Plane Crashes Near Brandywine

Two crewmen were killed yesterday when a private DC-3 twin-engine cargo plane carrying a shipment of flowers from Florida to Boston crashed and burned near Brandywine, Md.

The dead were identified by the plane's operators, Coastal Cargo, Inc., of Newark, N. J., as Stuart L. Morrill, 33, of Teaneck, N. J., the pilot, and Theodore Gitz, 27, of New York City, copilot.

A spokesman for the firm said the plane had cleared Raleigh, N. C., after being delayed several hours by bad weather. The Civil Aeronautics Administration said the plane's last radio contact was with Richmond.

It crashed about 7:15 a. m. in a wooded section off Route 381, near Brandywine, about 17 miles southeast of here.

Witnesses said the pilot appeared to be trying to stretch his glide into a clearing beyond the trees, and that one engine seemed to be dead and the second was "sputtering."

The plane clipped the tops of several trees, then hit a large tree and the forward part of the fuselage was sheared off, the plane bursting into flames.

One witness, Lake E. Ransom, a used car dealer from Brandywine, said one of the crewmen was "unconscious but still alive" when he reached the plane. Ransom said, "I tried to pull him free, but he was trapped with one of the engines lying across both legs."

Ransom said he brought water from a nearby stream to pour on the fire, but the flames soon drove him away.

Destroyed in the blaze were the plane's cargo of gladioli and other flowers. Part of the cargo was shipped by Southern Growers, Inc., from Delray Beach, Fla.

Firemen from Upper Marlboro, Forestville, Accokeek and Clinton, and firemen and an ambulance from Andrews Air Force Base raced to the scene, but were hampered by mud and thick brush. An investigation of the crash was begun immediately by CAA and the Civil Aeronautics Board.

2 Huntsville Children Palsy Cases From Birth, Doctors Say

The two Huntsville (Md.) children whose "starving" condition brought investigations by Maryland's Governor Lane, Prince Georges County commissioners and police, have had cerebral palsy from birth and are victims of "severe malnutrition," doctors said yesterday.

Authorities at Prince Georges County General Hospital, where the children, Marie Louise Hunt, 6, and her brother, Lawrence Eugene, 11, are being treated, said their congenital condition makes it most difficult to feed them, a fact which probably resulted in their malnutrition.

Meanwhile, county police closed their investigation without finding the basis for criminal charges. Maryland State Welfare Department Director J. Milton Patterson is expected to make his report on the case to Governor Lane today.

President Harry W. McNamee of the county commissioners also expects a full report today from Miss E. Susan Hendricks, head of the county welfare board, "which will show that the situation is quite different from the way it first appeared," according to McNamee.

The children, who have been unable to walk or talk since birth, were taken to the hospital Tuesday after their mother, Clara Hunt, called the hospital because Marie Louise seemed unusually ill.

Agency Seeks Early Funds in Slum Program

Formal Report Filed With Senate For Needed Program

Congress will be asked to make money available early this year for a start on the long-delayed Washington slum clearance and redevelopment program.

This was disclosed yesterday in a formal report filed with the Senate by Chairman Mark Lunsburgh of the District Redevelopment Land Agency, set up by the next-to-last Congress to handle the slum clearance program.

The agency is seeking $3,400,000 in the budget for the next fiscal year, but with the extra request that some of the money be made available in the present fiscal year to start work in the Marshall Heights section. The section is bounded by Benning rd. NE, East Capitol st., and the District Line.

Lansburgh's message mixed tones of frustration and hope.

Early Request Denied

He pointed out that the funds his agency had requested for a real start toward the 10-year, 20-million-dollar redevelopment program authorized by the Seventy-ninth Congress had been denied by the Eightieth Congress.

In view of the fact that no part of the 20-million-dollar authorization had actually been appropriated, said Lansburgh, "the agency has not been able to accomplish any of the plans or obligations imposed upon it by the Act of the Congress."

His report was drafted in September, and foretold agency plans to renew a budget request for $3,400,000—same amount that was denied by Congress last year.

Lansburgh said that the agency would request that a part of the funds be made available for use in the current fiscal year which ends June 30.

"This amount would be just a start on the program and over the next few years the agency will probably request most, if not all, of the authorized appropriation of 20 million dollars," the report said.

Serving Without Assistance

The report pointed out that members of the agency have been serving since February, 1947, without staff assistance, or their legally authorized pay.

"The lack of staff has imposed some hardship on individual members who have found it necessary to devote time to the necessary business of the agency, and with necessary expense being mostly paid by the chairman," the report said.

The tone of hope appeared near the end of the two-page single-spaced typewritten report letter.

"It is hoped that the new budget will be called up for hearings at an early date, upon convening of the Congress," the report said.

"The District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency feels that the act approved by the Congress, after hearings lasting over many months, is well drawn, and it hopes that the Congress will realize the immediate need of funds to start the redevelopment of one of the projects, Marshall Heights, for which preliminary plans have been drawn by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission."

"We hope that our annual report for next year may be one of accomplishment," Lansburgh concluded.

Bill Proposes Annapolis Anniversary Stamps

Representative Lansdale G. Sasser (D., Md.), yesterday introduced a House bill to authorize issuance of special stamps for the 300th anniversary of Annapolis, Md., to be celebrated in May this year.

Keleher Roused Her Suspicions In '34, Wife Says

'Diplomatically' Informed 'Rival's' Husband She Was Having an Affair

Breaking into tears on the witness stand, Mrs. Anna Keleher yesterday declared in District Court that she had suspected there was something between her husband and Mrs. Dorothy Blake as long ago as 1934.

Answering the direct questions of Judge Edward Tamm, she said she reprimanded her husband, John B. Keleher, after he answered Mrs. Blake's beckoning call at a New Year's Eve party in 1934, and that he flew into a rage about it.

Then sometime between 1935 and 1937, she discovered by telephone that her husband and Mrs. Blake had adjoining rooms in a New York City hotel for a weekend, she said.

Says She Forgave Him
"He denied it when he came back to Washington, but I forgave him for it," she added.

Mrs. Keleher, 51, is asking for a limited divorce on grounds of cruelty from Keleher, 67, once-convicted Washington gambler, who is contending on the same grounds. She also has filed a $250,000 allegation of affections suit against Mrs. Blake, 44.

After the New York City incident, Mrs. Keleher called Mrs. Blake's husband, Milton Blake, a Federal Bank Shop manager, several times to warn him that his wife was seeing around with a married man, she said.

"I'd hang up without giving my name each time, however. I was trying to be diplomatic about the whole thing," she explained to Judge Tamm.

"Blow Up" Three Years Ago
She said she was not positive, however, about the relationship between her husband and Mrs. Blake until about three years ago, and then when she discovered they had been seeing each other for years, "she blew up."

Earlier in the afternoon, Mrs. Keleher charged that attempts were made to "frame her" while she was in New York City the summer of 1946, a few months after she had left her husband, taking with her about $31,000 in cash from their safety deposit boxes.

She said on a Friday, she received a telephone call from a man. However, she was not allowed to repeat the conversation in court. She said that several days later her husband called her to say he had heard that she had had a "very nice weekend."

"Oh, Daddy. So you're the one who's doing this," she said to her husband. She declared that he replied:

Testifies on Death Threat
"You'd better cut it out or you're going to get bumped off by those bad boys."

Mrs. Keleher admitted that as late as last November, when she had been separated from her husband more than two years, had already filed her suit for divorce and was in debt up to almost $80,000, she charged a $1000 television set and three $39 radios to his account at a local radio store.

"Did you expect to pay for them?" Alvin Newmyer, her husband's lawyer asked.

"No, I expected my husband to. I know he will. He has always taken care of my bills," she replied. When asked if she thought their relations were friendly enough to warrant this now, she answered:

"I never let him down. He said he'd never let me down. I fought like a demon for him when he went to jail." She referred to a sentence he served in 1929 for a gambling conviction.

Lost $10,000 on Horses
Miss Keleher also admitted that in the early part of 1946, Keleher had given her $10,000 as part payment for $20,000 worth of jewelry he had ordered several months earlier for her as a Christmas gift. She never made the payment, but lost the money on horse bets and the jewelry still rests in the store's vaults, she said.

Mrs. Keleher denied vehemently that during the past year she had arranged for a man to telephone Mrs. Blake at all hours of the night and make insulting remarks to her. She denied as strongly that on one occasion she had telephoned Mrs. Blake every 15 minutes for several hours, representing herself as a long-distance operator or a police official's secretary.

Mrs. Keleher protested that, instead, she herself has been telephoned repeatedly by Mrs. Blake. Denies Calling Woman's Son "Just yesterday and the night before last I got calls. As soon as I'd pick up the phone, they'd hang up on me," she declared.

Mrs. Keleher also denied that on March 4, 1948, she called Mrs. Blake's married son in Philadelphia, and giving a fictitious name, tried to blackmail his mother's name. Under redirect examination, Mrs. Keleher told the court about the many difficulties she had with several Washington lawyers before she hired her present attorney, James J. Laughlin.

She charged that the day she left her husband in February,

The Washington Post

1946, she turned over her 15-carat diamond ring and some $3000 in cash to Charles E. Ford.

That same night, just before she left for New York City, he returned the ring and about $1600 of the money, she said. A week later, Ford notified her that with $3500 of the money over to her husband, who was broke, she declared.

She said when she returned to Washington in March, Ford refused to return the rest of the cash, stating he was going to keep it as his fee, although he had filed no papers for her. She has filed suit against him to recover $6450 in cash.

Mrs. Keleher said that another lawyer, Roy St. Lewis, arranged with Newmyer to have her husband give her $700 a month from December, 1947, through April, 1948, as temporary maintenance.

Advised to "Hook Her Ice"
"He told me it would take care of me in a small way over the holidays. I was angry and declared I couldn't accept so little because I was so deeply in debt but since I was destitute, I had to take it," she explained.

"Mr. St. Lewis then told me to hook my ice. He was very nasty to me," she added.

During the trial, Laughlin introduced a circular which Mrs. Keleher said her husband sent to his "customers" before she and her husband separated. The circular read in part:

"This is to remind you my office at MI. 3630, MI. 3631 and MI. 3632 is open from 12 noon until 7 p. m. . . . Should you desire anything in my line, a call would be appreciated."

Infant Suffocates In Carriage Outside His Home

The 2-month-old infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Coleman, 5032 Bradley blvd., Bethesda, suffocated yesterday in his carriage outside the parents' home, Bethesda police reported.

Efforts of a neighborhood physician, the mother and the Bethesda-Cherry Chase rescue squad to revive the infant, John T. Coleman, failed. The child had been discovered lying face down in the carriage by his mother. A certificate of accidental death was issued by the Montgomery County coroner.

Fr. Williams Dies, Former D. C. Pastor

The Rev. Thomas David Williams, 75, pastor of St. Anthony's Catholic Church here between 1910 and 1917, died yesterday at Bon Secours Hospital in Baltimore, where he had been a patient for more than 10 years.

Father Williams was born in Washington, the son of the late Thomas and Honorine Wanda Williams. He studied at the Immaculate Conception School here before attending Gonzaga College High School, St. Charles College and St. Mary's Seminary.

During his early life, he was a friend of Mlle. Antoinette Margot, with whom Clara Barton worked during the Franco-Prussian war in Switzerland and who was the founder of St. Anthony's Church in 1892 at 907 Michigan ave. ne., now DeSales Hall. The present church is at 12th and Monroe sts. ne. Father Williams wrote a biography, "The Life of Antoinette Margot."

As a patient in the Baltimore hospital, he contributed regularly to the Catholic Review a column called "Your Little Meditation."

He was ordained by Cardinal Gibbons in Baltimore in 1897 and was first assigned to St. Martin's Church in that city. Other assignments included St. Stephen's in Washington, and St. Mary's in Govans, Md. His last parish was St. Williams in Baltimore.

A solemn pontifical mass will be celebrated at St. William's at 10:30 a. m., Saturday by the Right Rev. Msgr. Joseph J. Leary, pastor of St. Mark's Church, Catonsville, Md. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Washington.

Lieut. Gibbins Reburial Set Here Today

Funeral services for Lieut. Henry Gibbins, Jr., who was killed with an OSS unit behind enemy lines in northern Burma in 1944, will be held today at 9:30 a. m. in Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

The son of the late Quartermaster General of the Army, Maj. Gen. Henry Gibbins, he attended Central High School, where he captained the football team, and was graduated from Georgetown University. At the time of his enlistment, he lived at 2219 California st.

Lieutenant Gibbins was killed January 8, 1944, while dropping supplies by plane to OSS Detachment 101, the only OSS unit to receive the Presidential Unit Citation, which was operating behind Japanese lines. He held the Air Medal and the Purple Heart.

Born in Knoxville, Tenn., he had been employed by the Reynolds Metal Co. of Richmond, Va., but was operating in Washington.

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Margaret Gibbins Bride of New York City.

Reburial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Helen Silliman Lewis

Mrs. Helen Silliman Lewis, for many years librarian at the Government Printing Office, died of a heart attack Wednesday at her winter home in Brooksville, Fla.

The wife of Fielding Merriweather Lewis, she had made her home in Potomac Beach, Va., since her retirement from the printing office in 1939. Although a native of New England, she had lived most of her life in Washington.

Mrs. Lewis is survived by her husband, a retired employee of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, and a sister.

Funeral services will be held Monday at the Ives funeral parlors, Wilson Blvd., Arlington, Va., at 3:30 p. m.

Earnings Gain Shown in D. C. Bank Reports

By S. Oliver Goodman

The first seven Washington banks to publish condition statements for 1948 showed excellent results. Earnings were better than in the previous year. One of the best in history here. This was due to improvement in the average interest rate received on investments and a sharp increase in volume of loans.

Investment in Government securities generally was far lower than a year ago. This was attributed partly to the increased reserve requirements put into effect last year by the Federal Reserve System and the broader lending activity. To meet the higher reserve requirements, the banks sold Government securities.

In all seven instances the local banks were able to add to their capital funds out of earnings. The surplus and profits accounts showed individual totals surpassing the comparable figures for December 31, 1947. Condition statements of the largest banking groups showed the following:

National Bank reported surplus and undivided profits of $1,945,465, a gain of $368,142 for the past 12 months. This was after payment of a $2 extra dividend and regular quarterly dividends of $3 a share. Total dividends for the last year amounted to $14 a share, against $12 a share in 1947.

American Security & Trust Co. reported an increase of $354,959 in undivided profits for 1948. Surplus and undivided profits totaled $7,281,323 at year-end, against $6,886,864 on December 31, 1947. This was after payment of an extra dividend of 2 1/2 per cent and regular quarterly dividends of 2 1/2 per cent.

Union Trust Co. added $183,713 to undivided profits. Surplus and undivided profits on the most recent date totaled $3,005,638, against $2,821,925 on December 31, 1947. An extra dividend of 50 cents a share was voted in December, making the total $1.50 a share for the year.

National Savings & Trust Co. showed a gain of $102,007 in undivided profits for the year. Combined surplus and undivided profits totaled $3,538,690 at year-end, against $3,436,683 at the end of 1947. National Savings & Trust declared an extra of $1 a share, in addition to payment of regular quarterly dividends of $2 a share.

Second National Bank reported a gain of $87,115 in undivided profits. Surplus and undivided profits totaled $1,450,748 at year-end, against $1,363,633 at the end of 1947. An extra of 1 1/2 per cent was voted for the last quarter, making total dividends 9 1/2 per cent for 1948 against 8 1/2 per cent for the previous year.

Washington Loan & Trust Co. added $72,217 to undivided profits. Surplus and undivided profits totaled $3,235,707 at year-end, against $3,223,550 on December 31, 1947. Regular quarterly dividends totaling 12 per cent for the year were declared.

Liberty National Bank added $50,000 to surplus at year-end, making total surplus $800,000. Aggregate capital accounts amounted to $1,713,207 at year-end, against $1,634,097 on December 31, 1947. Regular dividends totaling 3 per cent a share were paid for the year.

Park Bureau Turns Down Stadium Plan

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission has turned down a proposal to erect a small stadium on Park property at Oklahoma ave. and Benning rd. ne.

Kavakos, long active in softball here, submitted a plan to erect a plant seating 8000 that would be suitable for night softball and football.

Kavakos said yesterday the estimated cost was $50,000. He offered to put up the money for the stadium with the provision that it would be turned over to the Park Service after the original cost was returned to his group.

The night club operator admitted that it probably would take seven or eight years to get back the original investment. He added that after the stadium was turned over, his group sought an arrangement to split any profits on a 50-50 basis with the park group.

"I think it's obvious that we aren't trying to make a lot of money out of this thing," said Kavakos. "Principal objective is to have a place for amateur groups to play night ball."

"We've searched the entire District and other than the park land, haven't been able to find a suitable place to put a stadium."

Kavakos sponsors a softball team that won the Eastern Atlantic Softball League championship three years running. Because there isn't a place to play here, the club played all its games on the road.

A. E. Demaray, executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said Kavakos' proposal was rejected because the commission felt that it wouldn't be a proper use of park land.

Demaray added that the commission planned to study the situation to see if the public need for such a stadium would warrant construction by the Government.

BCC Hi-Y Defeats Central Team, 36-21

Ex-Terp Boxer Dies

Baltimore, Jan. 6 (AP)—Thomas J. Birmingham, former lightweight boxing champion of the Southern Conference, died at the age of 33.

His death came after an operation at Mercy Hospital last night.

Birmingham, one of the University of Maryland's outstanding athletes of the '30s, took part in the National Intercollegiate Boxing Tournament before he graduated in 1937.

Gordon Wins Again

With 23 points, Guard Sonny Timbol led the Gordon Junior high basketball team to a 39-12 victory over Our Lady of Victory in Georgetown branch game of the Boys Club of Washington League. It was the third straight victory for Gordon, only undefeated team in the league.

Olympians Honored

The Capital Chapter of the Olympic Athletes will hold a dinner and meeting at the Emerson Hotel in Baltimore on January 31 at 6 p. m. The purpose of the affair is to welcome the 48 Olympic athletes living in Maryland, Virginia and Washington.

2 Bama Stars Convicted in Guard Case

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 6 (AP)—Col. Dent Williams, commander of the 167th Regiment of the National Guard, announced today that two University of Alabama football players were convicted by a summary court martial of charges of failure to attend drills.

Two other students also were convicted.

Colonel Williams said the court's sentences would not be disclosed until it has been reviewed by Gov. James E. Folsom. The findings were mailed to the Governor today.

Six students in all were charged. Williams said, but those against Hugh Morrow are being dropped. Another case, against Larry Lauer, will be heard next Tuesday night at Tusculoo.

Lauer, Eddie Salem and Rebel Steiner, members of the Alabama football team, and William Bryant and David Schnitzer, were arrested December 9 on warrants charging failure to report for Federal inspection of a National Guard unit.

They were held overnight in the Tusculoo County Jail.

The civil charges were later dropped in Inferior Court on grounds the court lacked jurisdiction.

The warrants were sworn to by Capt. Beason J. Walker, Tusculoo, commander of Company A. Walker issued a statement in which he said Salem had attended 12 out of 24 drills, Lauer six of 23, and Steiner failed to attend 18 drills.

A military source said that normally a summary court will hand officers only fines for similar first offenses.

Colonel Williams said the charges against Morrow are being withdrawn because Morrow has accepted a commission in the organized reserve and is resigning from the National Guard.

Bowling

Defending titlist Nick Tronsky, New Britain, Conn., faces a strong field tomorrow night at Bethesda Bowling Center in the nineteenth annual United States Duckpin Classic.

With $4000 in prize money on the line, the National Duckpin Bowling Congress has been swamped with entries from New England to Atlanta, Ga.

Leading the local contingent is Clute Pannell, considered the District's No. 1 bowler. In all, more than 100 Washingtonians will compete. Julie Singer, Paul Perkins and Moe Meade are expected to figure with Pannell in thwarting the out-of-towners.

From Baltimore, top men expected include Bob Fisher, Johnny Gaise and Lee Seim. Coming in from Pittsburgh is Darwin Wallace.

As a prelude to tomorrow night's big show, New Haven, Conn., All-Stars will roll against Tom's Auto Service team of the Men's Major District League in a special benefit for the March of Dimes tonight at Chevy Chase Ice Palace.

Some of New England's best bowlers are on the Connecticut team. They include Jack White, Ben Kosky, Mac Carboni and Walter Karajewski. Tom's Auto will be represented by Moe Meade, Howard Parsons, Paul Jarman, Joe Freschi, Johnny Reesa and Nick Rinaldi.

Panella Faces Florists

Boots Panella hoped 12 points to spark his Caruso Florist mates to a 35-30 win over the Millikin Travelers yesterday in a Central High Recreation League game at Central. It was the Florists' sixth win in seven starts.

It Happens Every Time

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Jan. 6 (AP)—The annual Eastern States speed skating championships, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, were cancelled tonight because of lack of ice.

Woman's Sister, Highly Paid Secretary, Is Back in Town After Some Years' Mysterious
Absence and Now Tries to Steal Her Husband

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My sister Kate, 32, a streamlined secretary able to command a large salary, is the problem. Four years ago she returned to this city after six years' absence, during which none of us knew where she was.

We were glad to see her, but not for long. She stayed in my home, got a high-powered job with an oil company, wore my clothes, refused to pay board, ran up a big telephone bill, stole my baby's piggy-bank, and kept company with a married man, using her salary on airplane trips to see him.

Finally we had a fight when my husband bought her expensive perfume. I protested her behavior and asked her to leave; but he upheld her and gave her money to go to a hotel. I had trouble with him after she left, and I believe he's been seeing her since, although it didn't dawn on me until two weeks ago when she reappeared, bag and baggage, playing the sweet docile sister.

Urges Twin Beds on Married Couple

AGAIN she wanted to wear my clothes, borrow money from Ross, which she did, and plan a new program for my house, including twin beds for Ross and me, which I had no desire for. Also Ross turned into a madman, treating me like a half-wit. Again I got up courage to ask her to leave, after she had made a scene when I refused to give her my favorite brother's picture to carry in her purse.

She left in a huff, called back to apologize; and then this morning (it sounds insane) telephoned to say in the sweetest words that she thinks I shouldn't live with Ross because of the way he treats me; yet she incites it! Also she wants me to take a job on a plantation—just leave home, children, everything—for my health. I've had pernicious anemia.

I told her I don't want any job except to care for my husband and children, and that if left alone we can make a go of our marriage. However, I'm afraid it will take something more drastic to put Kate in her place. How can I tell her, in plain words, to leave us alone—and yet not permanently sever our relations? I love her as a sister, but I feel my marriage is at stake. I am sure she is meeting Ross at her office and other places. Please answer soon. A. P.

Facing a Panther, Does One Wheedle?

DEAR A. P.: Obviously Kate is a psychopathic character, as crazy as they come, outside of strait-jackets; but crazy in the sense that

Chores In 'Playhouse' Are Electrically Light

By Lucia Brown

TO LIGHTEN your work and brighten your life, today's household equipment is in a constant state of evolution.

Not a day passes that changes aren't made at some factory or laboratory so that ranges or refrigerators, laundry or lighting appliances, will be more efficient and good-looking. Ideas about arranging equipment are evolving constantly, too, as home economists and engineers concentrate on new ways of making home-making easier.

A lot of these innovations are—and will be—reflected in the model rooms at the new Electric Playhouse, just opened at 10th and E sts., nw., Electric Institute, the dealer organization sponsoring the playhouse, plans to keep the rooms right up to the minute so they'll tell you at a glance what's new and what's coming in electrical living.

Here are a few tips on today's kilowatt conveniences, gathered in a tour of living room, kitchen, and utility room on the circular movable stage of the playhouse:

Having one of the new "no-fuse load centers" in kitchen or laundry room prevents those groping trips to the basement that are routine in many homes when a fuse blows out. Outmoding the old-fashioned fuse box, the "no-fuse load center" consists of a small panel of automatic switches. As soon as you get a short on a circuit—from defective iron or cord or motor—a switch turns off the "juice" and refuses to turn it on again until the short is repaired.

Installing laundry equipment right next to the kitchen makes it simple to do a small amount of laundry automatically each day while you're preparing meals. The laundry corner on the Playhouse stage has a small sink and counter, next to the washing machine, for stain removal, sprinkling clothes, and similar jobs.

A kitchen built like a miniature production line speeds up food preparation. The Playhouse kitchen has a series of three different work units—one around the refrigerator, one around the sink, and one around the stove. Utensils and supplies most often used in DECORATING WITH LIGHT: "Edge lighting" below the mirror, a "picture light" and "book lighting" in the shelves add to the smart distinction of this living room. The edge lighting is built into the mantel, covered by opaque glass. Shining upward, the light illuminates the handsome Steuben glass and figurines on the mantel. In the picture light, small bulbs are installed inside the frame around the edge of the flower print.

Can you tell me if there is a lamp shade on the market which protects the head from the heat of the electric light. After reading for a couple of hours, I find my head uncomfortably warm from the heat of the floor reading lamp. If such a shade is available, I am sure other readers like myself would be glad to know it. P. J. M.

There doesn't seem to be a shade which would lessen the heat from the light. Does your lamp have a reflector? If not, a reflector will lessen the heat under the lamp. If you wish to have the lamp converted to use a reflector, one lamp firm which can ordinary standards of reason and decency mean nothing to her. Lots of whirlwind self-promoters—ruthless, selfish, magnetic, brilliant in a way—are found in this category.

You probably wouldn't let sentimental considerations give you pause if a panther or boa constrictor were bent on making a fine meal of you; and as for Kate, she has no more conscience than either of these jungle creatures, in the matter of striking to take what she wants when she sees it.

Just now she's after everything you've got—except the children, probably—and would stop at nothing to get you out of the way, so that she might enter into full possession and enjoyment of your husband, your home, your clothes, etc.; and although she has Ross hypnotized and half out of his mind, still he has flashes of knowing how bad she is, and therefore she feels she must banish you, his balance-wheel, in order to complete her conquest of him.

Cain's Counterpart on Score of Feeling

ALL OF WHICH is to explain that pussyfooting won't do, in dealing with her. By biological reckoning she may be your sister, but figuratively she is Cain's counterpart, and would destroy you figuratively without a pang, to satisfy her aimless cupidity if possible.

So you must be tough in shutting her out of your life and refusing to bandy more words about it. You must be as tough in spirit as the Avenging Angel who ushered the traitors-to-trust out of Paradise; and you must not apologize to Ross for taking this justified stand. If he has any sense at all, he'll be thankful eventually that you stood firm as the Rock of Ages.

This coterie of citrus tempters includes a front row with Parfait a la Florida and Golden Tart and a Perfection Salad in the background DAME NATURE had her wits about her when she arranged for the citrus season to reach its peak just when vitamin C is most needed by the populace.

Trains and trucks, rushing grapefruit and oranges up from the South, bring a golden bounty of the sunshine vitamin to the wintry North. Nowadays, besides the fresh fruit, we get canned and frozen citrus juices, so there's no excuse for not getting your full share of "C" to help you guard against fatigue and colds.

PARFAIT A LA FLORIDA

2½ cups (1 No. 2 can) orange, tangerine, or blended citrus juice
1 pint vanilla ice cream
Pour juice in freezing tray and freeze until firm. Put alternate layers of frozen juice and ice cream in parfait glasses, starting and finishing with frozen juice. Serve at once. This recipe makes eight servings.

GOLDEN TARTS

3 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons cornstarch
2½ cups orange juice
4 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon lime juice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
8 baked pastry tart shells
Mix ¾ cup sugar, flour, salt and

Greenbelt Women To Hear Educator

Miss Marjorie Fraser Webster, president of Marjorie Webster Junior College for Girls, will discuss "Education and Youth" before members of the Woman's Club of Greenbelt, Md., Thursday, at 8:15 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Daniel D. Branch, 13-H Ridge rd. The program will be under the direction of Mrs. Joseph L. Rogers, education and youth chairman.

Mrs. William L. Moore, Jr., pianist, will give several musical solos. Assisting Mrs. Branch will be Mrs. Stanley R. Edwards, Mrs. Arthur N. Gawthrop, Mrs. Glenn E. Kitchin, Mrs. Alice L. Smith and Mrs. James T. Gobbel.

cornstarch together. Measure orange juice. Blend ¼ cup of the juice with dry ingredients and put remaining 2 cups juice in top of double boiler over direct heat and bring to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in cornstarch mixture, return to heat and cook, stirring constantly, until it thickens and boils. Beat egg yolks slightly; stir in hot mixture gradually. Return to double boiler and cook over hot water, about 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, stir in lime juice and butter; chill. When cool turn into baked pastry shells. Top with meringue, made by beating 4 egg whites light and sweetening with ½ cup sugar. Pile lightly on center of filling and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) until lightly browned, about 15 minutes. Yield: 8 servings.

PERFECTION SALAD

2½ cups grapefruit sections
Grapefruit, orange, tangerine or blended juice

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
3 tablespoons sliced olives
¼ teaspoon salt

1 cup finely shredded cabbage
½ cup diced celery, stuffed

Drain grapefruit sections; cut in pieces and drain again. Measure sirup and add any of the citrus juices desired, grapefruit, orange, tangerine or blended juice to make 1¾ cups. Soften gelatine in ½ cup of the citrus juice mixture; heat the remaining juice and salt. Add the hot juice to the softened gelatine, and stir until dissolved. Chill until the mixture is the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Add grapefruit sections, cabbage, celery and olives. Turn into individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens and serve with mayonnaise. If desired, garnish with grapefruit sections and watercress. Yield: 6 servings.

MINTED CITRUS ADE

¼ cup sugar
2 No. 2 cans citrus juice, chilled
Mint sprigs

To frost glasses, dip rim in egg white to ¼ inch, then in sugar. Place ice cubes in tall glasses, add fruit juice and mint sprigs. Yield: Six servings.

Writing Representative

Rep. Cecil (No E) Hardin Arrived in 81st Congress Via the U. S. Mails

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

BECAUSE a final "E" in the name of Cecil Hardin causes considerable confusion, reporters, seeking interviews with Indiana's new lady Republican Representative, skipped by the nameplate on her office door. Mrs. Hardin hasn't the foggiest idea why she's Cecil, not Cecile!

Though Representative Hardin has been in politics 16 years, this is her first elective job. She won it the tough way, by a grueling personal campaign.

Hoosier born and bred in Covington, Fountain County, her preliminary dip into political activity was precinct vice chairman. By 1938 hard work in party organization upped her to similar posts in the Sixth District. Automatically she became a member of the Republican State Committee and at Philadelphia last summer, where Mrs. Hardin functioned on arrangements and the housing subcommittee, she was serving her second term as national committee-woman.

Her Democrat opponent was nominated last May. On July 28, though no less than 14 men were rivals for the Republican congressional candidacy, the District Committee unanimously nominated Cecil Hardin. Her opponent had a three-months campaign lead! Additional hazard was the fact that Virginia Jenks, a Democrat defeated in 1938, had been Congresswoman from the same district. Masculine attitude, tinged with irritating superiority was, "We've had a woman in Congress. Why try out another?"

MRS. THAYER

Door-Bell Ringing Campaign

TO COMBAT masculine "show me," plus her politically well-heeled opponent's three-months' start, Mrs. Hardin launched a terrific campaign. A firm believer in personal contacts, she rang door bells to a fare-thee-well, went into factories, shook hundreds of grease-stained hands.

She wrote literally thousands of personal letters to those she was unable to contact—every single school teacher, every physician (because her son is a doctor), every Ford dealer (because her husband deals in Fords). She also wrote personally to every shop owner. Besides this stupendous desk work, Mrs. Hardin averaged two to three speeches every day.

The only real issue was that, inescapably, she was a woman. She worked on this issue until three or four every morning—driving her own car back at 11 p. m. election eve from a foray into her opponent's precinct in Terre Haute. Her efforts were so successful that she carried his home bailiwick by 52 votes and had an all-over plurality of precisely 483 votes! "For which," smiled Representative Hardin, "I'm very, very grateful!"

CECIL HARDIN is short, brunette, pretty. She center-parts her hair, dimples in a smile, showing toothpaste advertisement teeth. For her first joint session she wore a black suit, frilled sheer blouse, her Persian-banded jacket enlivened with a red rose worn in a tiny lapel vase.

Mrs. Hardin wears nice high heels, filmy stockings and is exceedingly feminine. Her favorite role is that of grandma. Her only child (who, contrary to a news report, is her very own, not a foster child), Dr. Murray E. Hardin, and his wife have a 6-year-old Judy, a two-and-a-half Timmy. To please their up-and-coming parent, so they claim, there'll soon be another little Hardin.

As novice legislator, Representative Hardin will take what comes her way on congressional committees. Her main interest, like every other woman's, so she says, is world peace—a just and permanent peace. And, like every other woman, she's vitally concerned with economy—for ordinary living and in the management of our Government.

On the Party Front...

This New Coffee
Flavor
Makes Early Morning Angels

It turns Bears into Deers...it's a wonderful, wonderful spirit-lifting success

Yes, it's "angel-making"—this wonderful new Chase & Sanborn blend! "What's in it?" people ask!

The answer is Selecciones (pronounced select-see-o-nays). That's the Spanish for selected...some coffees selected mainly for perfecting body...others selected mainly for perfecting flavor. The flavor coffees in this heavenly new blend are hand-selected 1-2-three times!

Products of Standard Brands Incorporated, 595 Madison Ave., N.Y.C.

1. Hand-selected from shade-grown, pedigreed trees.
 2. Hand-selected at the peak of ripeness.
 3. Hand-selected before and after curing.
- No wonder it's so delicious. Try it! If you don't think it's the best coffee you ever tasted, just send us the unused portion and we'll give you double your money back. Get your pound today! (It's vacuum-packed, of course.) And long live your houseful of early morning angels!

Director of ECA Aid to Korea Denies Failure

Dr. Edgar A. J. Johnson, director of the Korean division, Economic Cooperation Administration, insisted in a talk yesterday before members of the Twentieth Century Club that the American program in Korea is a success.

Dwelling on the nonpolitical nature of the program, he pointed to the dramatic reduction in cholera from 17,000 cases in 1946 to 24 cases, with 1 fatality, in 1948.

"I am grieved," he said, "by the persons who visit Korea and return home to write of 'failure in Korea,' or 'Blunder in Korea.' There is no failure in Korea. The program is a success."

Praising the women in Korea, Dr. Johnson said that more women voted and registered in the recent election than men. As a result of the election, when 91 per cent of all persons eligible registered, the United Nations, at the Paris meeting recommended Korea as a free and independent republic and President Truman gave full recognition as his first Executive act of 1949, Dr. Johnson said.

A former civil administrator and chief advisor to the Army and military government in Korea, he said the government was faced with the problem of no Koreans qualified for the high positions of the country when the Japanese moved out. The Japanese had all the important positions themselves reserving the bookkeeper status for the Koreans, he explained.

Preceding Dr. Johnson's talk, Mrs. Monroe Burk, chairman of the District affairs of the D. C. League of Women, spoke briefly on the District of Columbia proposed retail sales tax.

Mrs. Burk said there were several advantages and disadvantages to the sales tax, among the advantages being the tax would be a large source of income to the District. Also, Washington's large transit population would be taxed, alleviating the burden from the natives.

Among the disadvantages was the fact that the tax was a regressive one, thereby making a poor man pay a larger percent of his income than a rich man.

Dr. Guell Is New Cuban Envoy to Pan-American Union

New Cuban Ambassador to the Pan American Union, or Organization of American States, is tall and handsome Gonzalo Guell, who already has shoals of friends here from the days when he was a member of the Cuban Embassy staff.

Dr. Guell first came to Washington in 1925 as secretary of embassy when Orestes Ferrara was his chief. In 1933 he was transferred to Brazil as Charge d'Affaires, then to Panama, Colombia and finally to Norway.

After a tour of duty at the Foreign Office in Cuba, Senor Guell was appointed Ambassador to Mexico. He made his first visit here in several years when the Cuban President General Marras came to Washington in early December.

After sitting in on a plenary session of the Council of the Organization of American States on Wednesday, Dr. Guell will leave soon for Havana and thence to Mexico to say goodbye to his friends there. He will be back in Washington in a few weeks.

cold food preparation are in cabinets close to the refrigerator. The same idea is applied to sink and stove, and there's plenty of counter work space surrounding all three.

Light can be used in dozens of ways now to beautify the home, inside and out, and make work easier. The house entrance on the Playhouse stage is floodlighted from a tree in the "yard," has tiny indirect lights in the flower border, a light over the door, and a three-way switch to illuminate the garage before leaving the house.

The latest thing in easy-on-the-eyes reading lamps combines two types of lighting—fluorescent and incandescent. An indirect bowl holds a regular light bulb, while a fluorescent tube circles the outside of the opaque reflector. A good-looking shade shields them both. Result is a quality of light that approximates daylight and makes for less eye strain.

Rolled Ocean Perch

(ROSEFISH)

Plump, firm Ocean Perch fillets done to a crusty, steaming, golden brown, ready to flake apart at the touch of a fork. Plucked from the depths of the icy North Atlantic and quick-frozen the instant it reaches shore is the Gloucester Fisheries' secret of why you can now have Ocean Perch fresh and tasty as the day it was caught no matter where you live! Try Rolled Ocean Perch tonight! You'll find Ocean Perch fillets at your favorite food market, already cleaned, boned, ready to cook.

GLoucester FISHERIES ASSOCIATION

Grease large frying pan, add 2 tablespoons minced onion. Roll 1 pound Ocean Perch fillets like jelly roll, place in pan seam side down. Season. Arrange quartered tomatoes around fish, add 1/4 pound of sliced mushrooms. Pour over 1/2 cup white wine and 1/2 cup cold water. Simmer, covered, 10 minutes. Remove fish to hot platter. Cook liquid in pan to about 1 cup. Cream 2 tablespoons butter with 3 tablespoons flour, add to liquid, stir till thickened. Sprinkle fish with parsley, pour sauce over, slide under broiler to brown slightly. Serves four.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Here's Where Herb Can

Draw the Line
Cartoonist Herblock encountered this thought in a list of 1949's upcoming "weeks," but can't quite figure out how you'd express it in a drawing.

He finds that National Baby Week will be observed during the same seven days as Noise Abatement Week.

DISCORD AT WATER GATE
Homer L. Horst of 3617 14th st. n.w. registers a complaint that must have occurred to other District Eimers.

He says that during the past Water-Gate season, thousands of concert-goers were annoyed by airplanes which flew so low as they passed over the crowd that they drowned out everything that was going on up on the stage.

"In weather clement enough to give outdoor musical performances," he says, "an airplane should be able to land at National Airport without passing over the Water Gate amphitheater."

When I put the complaint to Tom Bell at TWA, I said: "It looks like Homer has a pretty good case." But Tom replied: "How about giving the defendant a fair hearing before you hang him?" "Okay," I agreed; and here's Tom's story: Airline pilots don't fly low over the Water Gate because they are trying to disturb the concerts, or are unaware of the annoyance they cause. The airport has made an earnest attempt to minimize such interference from low-flying planes. But very little can be done to improve the situation. Runways 18 and 33 are almost on a direct line with the Water Gate area, and when the wind is in the north or northwest, they're used for take-offs; if the wind is in the opposite direction, these runways are used for landings.

What makes things worse is that Number 18 is the widest and longest runway at the airport, and the most heavily used.

A twin-engine plane is usually at about 450 feet by the time it reaches the Water Gate area. It has not attained enough altitude to make an effort to avoid the concerts.

And besides, there are so many "restricted" areas here—such as the White House, the Pentagon, Bolling Field, etc.—that there isn't very much air left for maneuvering.

After listening to Tom's story, it looks like the "hanging" is off. Darn it; that's what comes of giving the defendant a fair hearing first.

GIVE-AWAYS

Male cocker, 6 months old; not a thoroughbred. (Emerson 9065, evenings.)

More than a year's issues of the New Yorker; will give to anybody who wants them for their contents, not for waste paper. (Otis 7639.)

CLAP HANDS, HERE COMES CHARLIE SCHUMAN

Poet Irving M. (Pop) Grey lapses into prose long enough to write:

"I was just about to send you a letter commending one of our best bus drivers, when I noticed your note revealing that he had sent a record player to the boys at Walter Reed."

"I'm not surprised, because Driver Charlie Schuman (No. 200) is a constant delight to his passengers."

"By way of example—Charlie's bus approached the Munitions Building one day recently, and he noticed that a big crowd was waiting to get on."

"Pulling his bus to the curb about a half block short of the regular stop, Charlie called out pleasantly:

"Will the young lady with the pretty hat please move a little further back?"

"Quick as a rabbit, 17 ladies (some young, some not so young) made their way to the rear of the vehicle, all smiling their appreciation of the driver's neat bit of psychology."

"Then the bus pulled up before the Munitions Building, and there was enough room for everybody in the crowd to get on. See why we like Charlie so much?"

WISE DOCTOR

You need a tonic, Mrs. Jones; There is no doubt of that. So I prescribe a simple cure: Go out and buy a hat.

Ruth H. Norris Chatham, N. J.

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons...

NEW YORK.—Jean Cocteau, the French author of "The Eagle Has Two Heads," was taken to the Stork Club by Charles Boyer, and told Boyer this story of Paris: A schoolboy came home weeping to his mother, and said that his classmates had teased him by shouting: "You have a big head, an enormous head." "They're wrong, darling," said the mother. "You have a small, exquisite head." The boy added: "But they threw stones at me and shouted I have a tremendous head." "It's a small delicate head," his mother reassured him. "Now do an errand for me. Go down to the corner and buy 10 pounds of potatoes." "How about a basket in which to carry the 10 pounds of potatoes?" asked the boy. "Carry them," she said, "in your cap."

Boyer is playing to capacity business in "Red Gloves." And there are additional crowds at the backstage door after each performance. Boyer first became a matinee idol in Paris, where he appeared in a series of plays by Henri Bernstein. In the first of these plays, there were 200 fans waiting for him outside the stage-door at a matinee. "What a remarkable attraction you have in this new actor, Charles Boyer," a friend told Bernstein. "Look at that mob—200 at the stage-door!" "Yes, 200 at the stage door," sighed the playwright, "but, alas, only 65 in the orchestra seats."

Henri Bernstein, who is nearing 70, still maintains his reputation as a big romancer, a reputation he's held for 50 years, during which his name was linked with the most beautiful women of Europe. A few weeks ago the playwright was at a party where a young pretty girl said: "I should have brought my car. I didn't realize this would be such a late party." "I have my car here," Bernstein volunteered. "Let me take you home in my car." "No, thank you. I'm a little tired," replied the lady, "so I'll walk home." Mrs. Alfred Knopf, the publisher, has flown to Berlin on the airport to discuss with Gen. Lucius Clay the book he will write about his experiences in Germany. A series of 20 recitals with symphony orchestras throughout the country and then will make a concert tour of Europe in the spring.

Truman Decisions Now His Own

By Drew Pearson

Those who sat with President Truman as he wrote his resounding State-of-the-Union message noticed an all-important change. No longer does he defer to Secretary of the Treasury Snyder or to other conservative advisers. He listens to them, but does not defer. He makes his own decisions, regardless of their advice.

In the old prelection days before the Nation turned the political reins over to the politicians, the old John Snyder, long-trusted and conservative Truman friend, was the most effective chopper-upper of congressional messages. He waited till the time was ripe—usually outside the executive office door—and popped in to give his advice after all the others had finished. Usually his advice stuck.

The recent message to Congress saw Snyder working just as hard to water down New Deal sections of the speech—without success. His soft-spoken caution, "Don't you think you're going a little too far, Mr. President?" or "I don't think you ought to do that, Mr. President," brought an equally soft-spoken but positive rejoinder from the little man in question.

"No, John," replied Mr. Truman, "we're going to do it this way."

Four Cabinet members united as a team to tone down the State-of-the-Union message, especially references to corporate taxes—Secretary of Defense Forrestal, Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, Acting Secretary of State Lovett and Snyder. They worked together beautifully, timing their conferences with Truman so that he never guessed what they were up to.

However, he didn't weaken. His reply in every case was:

"This is what the people voted for and this is what they're going to get."

Truman Leads Congress

There has been another change in the President since election day. He is working much more closely with the leaders on Capitol Hill. Three months went by last winter without a conference with Barkley and Sam Rayburn, but now Truman has had them in for frequent conferences and even called on Speaker Rayburn personally the day Congress opened.

Truman confides to friends that if there are any compromises to be made, he'll make 'em; for he knows what the traffic can bear. "The leadership didn't campaign in this election," the President told intimates, referring to committee chairmen rather than Barkley and Rayburn.

The leaders get to be leaders because of seniority, Truman continued. Thus leadership comes easiest for those from the soft districts and States where they don't have to campaign.

"I campaigned in almost every district," he added, "and I know that the people are watching this Congress."

Merry-Go-Round

Secretary of the Interior Krug has been making gentle overtures toward having his undersecretary, Oscar Chapman, appointed United States Ambassador to the Philippines. He's afraid Oscar might replace him in the Cabinet.

Aiding and abetting Krug is his old friend, Senator Clinton Anderson of New Mexico. Two Republican Congressmen, Stefan of Nebraska and Jensen of Iowa, were embarrassed last week to help sell $1000-a-page ads in a Harry Truman "Inaugural Album."

Album turned out to be a fancy promotion scheme by some New Yorkers who had nothing to do with the inaugural... Dictator Franco is taking seriously the United States Army talk about setting up bases in Spain. He is constructing new buildings about the size of our giant Pentagon to house the Spanish Air Force—though Spain has only about 100 military planes of its own. (Uncensored reports tell of new Spanish guerrilla warfare against Franco.)

The State Department has been squawking over Truman's plan to carry out the Democratic platform pledge and recognize Israel. Six Norwegian labor leaders, here on a so-called inspection trip, actually are gathering first-hand facts about the United States so as to counteract the Red Drive in Norway. The Russians are trying to capture the Norwegian labor movement in order to ouster Norway out of the North Atlantic pact. During the war Army commanders were plagued with faulty intelligence reports—such as the one that had President Truman in a dither last spring and which caused him to make the recent Kansas City speech about division inside the Kremlin.

Chief of Staff Gen. Omar Bradley suffered one of the worst setbacks in the Battle of the Bulge as a result of a bad intelligence report, with the result that he privately confides:

"If I had believed all my intelligence reports, I would still be shivering on the Normandy beach-head."

It's secret but significant that, shortly before Senator McKellar was elected President Pro Tem of the Senate, he and his Tennessee cohorts were gently reminded that they hadn't contributed a penny to the Democratic campaign chest. So McKellar got busy and raised $30,000 for the Democratic National Committee just before the Senate voted on him.

My Shopping Guide

When I decide to get some clothes... I take my wife along... Because she knows the latest styles... And what is right and wrong... Oh, I may buy some sex myself... Or just a shirt or two... But as for other articles... My choice would never do... For she must stamp approval on... The suits and ties I wear... Despite the fact that frequently... She drives me to despair... She argues with the salesman and... She laughs at what I choose... And spends an hour to select... A hat or pair of shoes... But when we leave the store and when... The project is complete... I must confess my person looks... Respectable and neat.
